PIUS XII DEDICATES HIS REIGN TO PEACE IN RADIO MESSAGE

Newly-Elected Pontiff Invokes 'Sublime Gift of Heaven' in Unexpected Broadcast to World.

CORONATION DATE SET AS MARCH 12

Conclave Secrecy Lifts; Pacelli Received All of Votes But His Own.

VATICAN CITY, March 3. (AP)—Pope Pius XII made peace the keynote of his pontificate today in an unprecedented message to the world at the outset of his reign.

His unexpected broadcast from the Sistine chapel to the far corners of the earth stressed a note of conciliation which many expected would characterize his policies.

The peace he invoked was "that peace, sublime gift of heaven, which is desired by all honest souls and which is the fruit of charity and justice."

He spoke in Latin for five minutes to the cardinals who elevated him yesterday to the throne of St. Peter, but he addressed his words—broadcast by the Vatican radio station—to all, and extended his blessing not only to all Catholics but to those outside the church.

Earlier he had set his coronation for Sunday, March 12. On that day, in a rich and lengthy ceremonial, he will be crowned with the trirengo or pope's triple tiara.

Third Obedience.

The entire college of cardinals—61 members now that Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli has been chosen Pontiff—gathered to make their third obedience, the last act of ceremonial homage which follows a pope's election.

Then they met in the Sistine chapel, still furnished with its conclave equipment, to hear the singing of a te deum. At the end of this, a microphone was set before the Papal throne for the broadcast of the Pontiff's message.

The secrecy which customarily surrounds the conclave tended to disappear in face of the speed and unanimity with which Cardinal Pacelli was chosen yesterday on the first day of balloting.

Vatican prelates reported that he received 35 votes on the first ballot, including the unanimous support of the 27 foreign cardinals. On the second ballot the total rose to 40.

Both ballots were taken in the

Jones said his old car traveled 264,000 miles.

"It was like pulling eye teeth to part with it," he said.

Jovial President Greeted on His Return

Acme Telephoto.

President Roosevelt smiles a greeting to Charleston, S. C., where he is pictured above in the admiral's quarters of the cruiser Houston on his returnd yesterday from the fleet games in southern waters. One of the President's first utterances on returning was to reaffirm his belief that wages must be increased in southern industries.

F. D. R. TO CONFER WITH LABOR BODY

First Talk Probably Will Be Held Tuesday; Tobin Service Sought.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(UP)—President Roosevelt and six representatives of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations will meet early next week in a new effort to settle labor's three-year civil war, it was announced today.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said that the initial conference would be held at the White House, probably Tuesday morning. She also will participate. She was more optimistic than most labor men about the chances for success as she outlined plans for the first AFL-CIO joint conferences since December, 1937.

Roosevelt Made Appeal.

Mr. Roosevelt's participation had been anticipated, since it was a dramatic appeal from him to AFL President Green and CIO President John L. Lewis that brought about appointment of the negotiating committees.

Mr. Roosevelt asked that they negotiate a "peace with honor" within the "early months" of 1939 and said that he was "sure" they could heal the breach caused by a dispute over industrial versus craft unionism.

Some labor men, and at least one administration peace emissary, believed, however, that a truce—or peace without merger—may be the limit of achievement. But even this, it was said, would be satisfactory to the administration if it would end AFL-CIO rivalry on the industrial front, which has harassed employers, and bring them into agreement on major legislative questions.

Madame Perkins' announcement came shortly after AFL President

Cat Killed by Curiosity, Poked Nose Into Rat Trap

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

HAZLEHURST, Ga., March 3.—Curiosity killed E. E. Singletary's house cat—in a rat trap.

When Singletary went to inspect his trap set in a smokehouse, it was missing. It was found after a long search, with his cat in it, apparently dead. First aid was administered, and the cat revived, but died a few hours later.

NAZI YOUTH TOLD TO BAN ALCOHOL

Tobacco Also Disfavored by Leaders Who Cite Fuehrer as Example.

BERLIN, March 3.—(AP)—The Nazi leadership today called on German youth to assume a new "national duty"—abstinence from alcohol and tobacco in emulation of Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Opening a campaign against intoxicants and smoking, Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach and other orators held up the Fuehrer, who neither drinks nor smokes, as the example for all good Nazis.

Since beer was not mentioned, it was assumed that the campaign was directed only against hard liquor.

Under the auspices of the National Health Department of the Nazi party, a congress is to meet at Frankfurt-on-Main, March 5-7, to consider the topic of "Public Health and Harmful Indulgences."

More than 14,000 health officials and others have been notified to attend to hear speeches by Dr. Gerhard Wagner, leader of the organized medical profession, and others.

As the drive started, a ban on pushing the sale of cigars and cigarets was imposed by the Nazi-organized restaurant and refresh-

WAGES IN SOUTH MUST BE BOOSTED, SAYS ROOSEVELT

50 Per Cent Increase in Family Income Declared Necessary by President To Create Buying Power

CALLS WAR GAMES VERY SATISFACTORY

Cruiser Arrives in Charleston and F. D. R. Entrains for Capital.

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt came out again today for higher industrial wages in the south, asserting increased purchasing power for southern people must be brought about if progress is to be made toward solving the nation's "economic problem No. 1."

Questioned by Charleston reporters during an interview aboard the cruiser Houston, as he returned from his two-week voyage in southern waters, the chief executive said he had seen no change yet (he emphasized the word "yet") in this economic problem.

He said he hoped there was going to be a change for the better and he was going to do all he could to help bring this about.

The President declared the history making fleet maneuvers had been highly satisfactory and had proved among other things the necessity for establishing naval bases at San Juan, P. R., and St. Thomas, V. I.

The tanned chief executive entrained for Washington late in the day. He is due there tomorrow morning to address a joint memorial session of congress.

On the subject of better economicnomic conditions in the south, the President said there was tials. The real fact is, he added, that remnueration for all classes of workers has got to be increased.

He pointed out that industrial wheels do not move so long as the average southern family receives only $200 or $300 cash income annually. With such income, he said the average family cannot buy the necessities of life, and it also reacts harmfully on the purchasing power of the local merchant and professional man.

The southern population as a whole was so far below the rest of the nation economicall ne said, that there was very little inducement for a manufacturer to set up a factory in the south to make things used by southern people.

Even an increase of 50 per cent in the family income, he added would mean more things produced for southern consumption, and more purchases from the north with consequent increased buying power there for southern raw materials such as cotton, fruits and vegetables.

Leaders Pay Tribute to Jere Wells' Long Service

EASTERNERS FIGHT REVISION IN RATES

Freight Charge Leveling Bitterly Opposed at Congressional Hearing.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) Opposing interests in the controversy over freight rates spoke their minds today as congressional inquiries on both sides of congress were concluded abruptly.

Chairman Hill, Democrat, Alabama, of a special senate subcommittee, announced, after listening to nearly a dozen witnesses opposed to a revision of the freight rate structure, that he found "they have offered nothing to dispute the fact that unfair discrimination exists, not alone against the south, but against the west, the midwest and the far west."

Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, sent a letter to Representative Kennedy, Democrat, New York, urging that state's delegation to "take the lead in bringing about a united front" to defeat pending bills to revise the rate structure as "contrary to the interests" of New York and other northeastern states.

Lehman wrote Kennedy that a lowering of rates outside the eastern or official territory would "make it even more attractive than it is now for industries to move from New York state to the south."

Despite Senator Hill's insistence

Wells Given Silver Service On His Silver Anniversary

Leaders of State and County Pay Tribute to Fulton Superintendent, Marking 25 Years Service in County System.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Silver-tongued orators representing the state and county and leading organizations last night paid tribute to Jere A. Wells on his silver anniversary in the Fulton county public school system and then capped their praise by presenting the astounded school superintendent with a beautiful silver service.

It was a representative group of persons who crowded the dining hall at the Atlanta Athletic Club for the event, with practically every school teacher in the county system assembled to pay tribute to his or her boss. But the praise did not come principally from the teachers but from those men and women in high places who have been associated with Wells and who have been identified with various activities which have commanded the interests of the versatile school head.

A dinner preceded the speeches with C. W. O'Rear, president of the Fulton County Public School Teachers' Association, presiding as toastmaster.

Paul West, principal of Russell High school, East Point, told of the progress of the school system since 1925, the time Wells became school superintendent.

He said 6,500 were enrolled in 1925 as compared to 23,790 now; in 1925 there were 221 teachers as against 678 in 1938, and that there have been five mergers—East Point, College Park, Roswell and Milton and Campbell county schools.

He also recited the fact that salaries of elementary teachers have been increased nearly 400 per cent since 1925.

The 1925 budget was for $250,000. The 1938-39 called for the expenditure of $1,350,000.

8 HUIET EMPLOYES OUSTED FROM JOBS

U. S. Will Make Inquiry Into Appointments To Unemployment Division

Eight officials of the unemployment compensation division of the state department of labor have been dismissed from their posts pending a federal inquiry into alleged irregularities surrounding their appointments, it was learned yesterday.

Commissioner of Labor Ben T. Huet said he felt certain that "all ousted employes will be restored to duty."

The alleged irregularities are said to center around the merit examinations taken by the appointees and others who aspired to the posts.

Huiet said that he made the appointments from lists certified to him by Mrs. Maud Curtis, supervisor of examinations, while Mrs. Curtis said she informed the commissioner that when the appointments were made her list of certified applicants was not complete. The federal government, which requires the merit system, stepped in because although the division is a state function its funds are provided by the social security board.

Mrs. Curtis said a meeting of LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 3.—(AP)—Carl Aslinger was glad today he didn't take Marion Bowman's trousers.

BUFFETED LEVY MEASURE FACES HOUSE HURDLE

Measure Fought Item-by-Item by Opponents Before Week-End Recess; Night Session Planned.

FOOD ESSENTIALS EXEMPTED BY VOTE

Levy Characterized as 'Bankrupt' Bill; Economy First Is Advocated.

By The Associated Press.

Weary Georgia assemblymen last night called an armed truce in the house battle over a proposed 3 per cent retail sales tax to finance part of the $100,000,000 budget of state spending for the next two years.

Fresh ammulnition will be assembled over the week end for the renewal of assaults on Georgia's money problems on half a dozen fronts first thing Monday morning, with a night session in prospect to clear the way for decisive action Tuesday.

Debate over the hotly contested sales tax plan was interrupted by adjournment yesterday, leaving just 12 possible legislative days before automatic adjournment of the general assembly at midnight Saturday, March 18.

Harris' Warning.

House opponents of sales taxes as a source of state revenue fought the measure item-by-item yesterday, while others sought to switch attention to their proposals to finance operations from current revenues. The cross-currents of conflicting suggestions brought a sharp admonition from Speaker Roy V. Harris:

"I hope the members of this house will think the situation over carefully and come back prepared to cut the shoe to fit the foot."

Off the floor, Harris added:

"There is no need for an extra session. There ought not to be an extra session. The membership of the legislature will not change between now and January 1, 1941, and if the present members of the legislature don't know what they want to do now, they won't know in the summer."

The major change made today

'All Around Robin Hood's Barn' To Get Home

By Constitution Staff Artist.

If you want to get from Nashville to Knoxville the way Glenn Hicks did, here's the itinerary: Board plane at Nashville, don't land at Knoxville due to snow storm, ditto at Bristol, refuse airline's offer of train ride back from Washington and insist on flight, then—you guessed it—land back at Nashville and take the train to Knoxville. It took Glenn two days of flying, at the company's expense, to get to his destination—only 200 miles away.

EFFORT TO EASE BUSINESS LEVIES GAINS MOMENTUM

Committee Chairmen Ask Morgenthau Plans for Increasing Jobs in Private Industries.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) The powerful movement to ease taxes on business to stimulate recovery gained new momentum today when the chairmen of two congressional committees requested Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to submit plans for revenue law alterations that would "encourage private industry to increase employment."

Hailing Morgenthau's recent hints that tax changes were in the wind, Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, and Representative Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee, asked for the recommendations as soon as possible after the March 15 income tax collections are analyzed.

This was only one of several developments during the day with a bearing on business. Others:

Senator Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, declared in a statement that the administration's recent assurances to business were "encouraging" to believers in economic stability. He suggested that President Roosevelt implement the assurances by withdrawing the nomination of Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin Progressive, to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In a move declared to be part of the administration's "business appeasement" drive, General R. E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck and Company, was selected by Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins as his adviser on business relations. Wood is expected to concentrate principally on the question how new private investment in industry can best be stimulated.

What tax recommendations the treasury will make in answer to the summons from Capitol Hill have not been disclosed, but it was learned that advisers to Morgenthau are drafting somewhat sweeping revisions of corporate levies.

Directing Atlanta's prisons and studying at Emory University are all in a day's work for H. H. Gibson, city prison superintendent.

Courses in "Social Treatment of Crime" and "Social Disorganization" taught by Emory's Dr. H. N. Fuller provide Gibson with theory. He puts it into practice by carrying out his job as superintendent. He is working toward his master's degree. Thursday night he entertained his class of 25 at dinner.

BUILDING LEASED FOR $110,000 HERE

Toronto Tailoring Firm Rents 2-Story Structure on Peachtree.

One of the largest business leases closed in the city in some time was made Friday for the two-story and basement building at 56-58 Peachtree street, taken over by the Tip Top Tailors, Ltd., of Toronto, for a ten-year period, involving a minimum rental of $110,000. The building was occupied for many years by the Eiseman Clothing Company. The lessor is Asa G. Candler, Inc., the lease being negotiated by E. A. Erwin, vice president of the Draper-Owens Company, realtors.

The coming of the tailoring concern, operating in Canada for 30 years, means the establishment here of one of the many branches it is planning in the United States. It is understood it will have 15 distribution points throughout the United States, with its American factory at Linden, N. J. A. M. Talbot, an official of the firm, visited Atlanta and made the selection of its location.

The building on Peachtree street extends back through to Broad street, with frontages of 30 feet on both thoroughfares. It is to be extensively remodeled, air-conditioned, new fixtures installed, and modernized in every respect. Contract for the work has been let to the American Store Equipment & Construction Company, of New York, and the Tri-State Construction Company, local associate contractors.

Over 6,000 acres of redwood timber in northern California may be acquired by the government as a national forest.

Rivers Signs Five City, County Bills

Three Other Measures Passed by Senate; Fire Levy for Fulton May Be Vetoed on Protests.

Five Atlanta and Fulton county bills were made law yesterday by Governor Rivers, while the state senate passed several more measures of importance to the city and county.

Passed by the senate were:

1. A measure to allow the county to house misdemeanor prisoners in barracks, instead of working them on the roads.

2. An "omnibus" bill to provide election by council of the city comptroller, treasurer, electrical superintendent, chief of construction, tax collector and building inspector; to allow the mayor to veto sections of council-approved measures without killing all provisions; a requirement that all traffic rules be submitted to the police chief for approval, and a provision that notice of damage suit against the city must be filed within 90 days.

Pensions Raised.

3. A bill to raise police pension maximums from $60 to $75 per month.

Signed by the Governor were:

1. A permissive bill allowing the county to set up a pension system for all employes, who would be eligible to retire on a pension of not more than $50 per month at the age of 60 after 25 years of continuous service.

2. An act to increase the term of the county clerk from two to six years, effective October, 1939.

3. A measure to allow the Atlanta board of firemasters to reopen any case within 30 days to modify the sentence or fine meted out to a fireman found guilty of infraction of the rules.

Commission Election.

4. An act to provide that henceforth vacancies on the county commission will be filled for the unexpired term by the county commissioners—not in a special election by the people.

5. A law to allow the county to record deeds and other records by photographic copies.

The Governor has on his desk a county bill which would levy a one-mill county-wide tax for a county fire protection system, a measure to which city leaders and Mayor Hartsfield have entered objections.

Attaches of the Governor's office said the Fulton delegation, Cicero Kendrick, Helen Douglas Mankin and Paul S. Etheridge Jr., has asked the chief executive to veto this bill.

Businessmen in the city declared that it would impose another mill in the county levy for a service solely for the benefit of residents outside the city limits of Atlanta.

Another similar measure, for the purpose of maintaining parks in the county outside the city limits, has been approved by the legislature but business leaders of Atlanta have asked the Governor to veto this bill also, it was said.

Pope Pius XII Broadcasting His Message of Peace

Acme Radio-Telephoto.

Pope Pius XII unexpectedly broadcast a message of peace to the world yesterday, indicating this would be the keynote of his pontificate. The newly elected Holy Father is pictured at the left in his rich papal robes as he read his first message in the Sistine chapel. Dignitaries of the Vatican are pictured at his side.

PIUS XII DEDICATES HIS REIGN TO PEACE

morning and many members of the conclave were said to have started to pack their bags during the noon recess, considering his election a foregone conclusion.

Pacelli himself was reported to have shown his emotion only through accentuation of his pallor.

For nearly an hour before the third balloting began, he walked alone in the court of St. Damacus intently reading his breviary.

Prelates said that on the third ballot he received 61 votes, the 62d, his own, was understood to have been given to the dean of the College of cardinals, Gennaro Cardinal Granito Pignatelli Di Belmonte.

William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, forecast today a "remarkable pontificate" for the new pope.

"The Holy Father is truly a beautiful character," he said, "a man of great intelligence and wide experience. He is humble and he is clever. He possesses great force and great restraint. He truly may be said to be a living saint. That is something of great importance in these troublesome times."

He told how he had asked a special blessing for the people of Boston and the entire United States when he advance to the papal throne to pay his first act of homage to the new pontiff.

"With all my heart I bless them and will always pray for them," the Holy Father answered. "They all were so kind to me when I visited them."

Pious Predecessor.

In his broadcast discourse, Pius XII defined the peace for which he hoped and appealed as "that peace which our predecessor of pious memory recommended to men with so much insistence and invoked with such ardent prayers."

"We invite everybody," he said, "to peace of conscience, tranquil in the friendship of God; to peace of families, united and harmonized by holy love of Christ, and, finally, to peace among nations through mutual, brotherly assistance, friendly collaboration and cordial understandings for the superior interests of the great human family under the watchfulness and protection of Divine Providence.

"In these troublesome and difficult hours while so many difficulties seem to impede attainment of that peace which is the most profound inspiration of hearts, we raise to the Lord a special prayer for all those who are entrusted with the high honor and the grave burden of guiding peoples on the road to prosperity and progress."

Peace, he said, "is the first wish which rises from the paternal beat which God has inspired in our heart. Before us we have the spectacle of immense evils which scourge the world and for which blessed God sends us as succor, unarmed but believing."

His phrase describing peace as "the fruit of charity and justice" found an immediate, cordial response in Fascist circles.

Feared Politics.

This reaction was all the more notable because of the diffidence some Fascists had shown toward Cardinal Pacelli, before the election, as the possible successor to the late Pius XI.

This diffidence was based on the fear that he might continue or even intensify policies which brought his predecessor into conflict with the totalitarian regimes in Germany and Italy.

Il Giornale d'Italia, authoritative newspaper, said of today's speech:

"It may be imagined how welcome his words are to Italians considering that in Italy today order is exemplary, charity exists in the relations between the various social classes, and justice, already secure internally for all, is sought abroad for the population of workers which has no land nor raw materials for its life and the needs of all its sons."

The peace for which the pontiff appealed, it said, "Is not the abstract peace of democratic pacifists who make use of pacifist theories to conserve their privileges and their illegitimate possessions.

"The peace which the pontiff invokes and for which he intends to concentrate his energies as the pastor of peoples is, as he himself has said, 'peace in justice,' justice for nations and for individuals."

The atmosphere of cordiality was deepened by congratulatory telegrams which King Vittorio Emanuele and Premier Mussolini sent the pontiff last night.

The secretary of state's office acknowledged Il Duce's greeting today with a telegram which concluded:

"Grateful to your Excellency and to all members of the government, the Holy Father invokes Divine assistance on you and sends the entire nation one of his first apostolic benedictions."

Pius XII took his first automobile ride as Pope in an afternoon outing in the Vatican grounds. He chose a papal automobile—an American model almost ten years old—which was a favorite of his predecessor.

MAGLIONE IS SEEN FOR PACELLI POST

Former Nuncio to Paris Expected To Receive Papal Appointment.

VATICAN CITY, March 3.—(AP) Vatican prelates predicted tonight that Luigi Cardinal Maglione, former nuncio to Paris, would be the next Papal secretary of state.

Pius XII, as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, held the post for eight years and will make the appointment.

Prelates said selection of Cardinal Maglione to carry out the Holy Father's peace policy was almost certain for three reasons:

1. His diplomatic experience.
2. His comparative youth among the cardinals—he is 62 years old.
3. His intimate friendship with the Pontiff since they were classmates at Capranica College in Rome.

Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, former nuncio to Madrid, was most prominently named as the second choice.

TINIEST BABY DIES OF BRUTAL BEATING

Jealous Suitor of Mother Admits Burning Child With Red-Hot Iron.

SUNBURY, Pa., March 3.—(AP) Two-year-old Miriam Wolf, called "the rosebud baby" at birth because she was so tiny, died today of a brutal beating which state police said was inflicted by her mother's suitor.

Police Corporal Richard Gray said he would charge the suitor, Paul W. Barrick, 22, with murder.

He quoted the former brickyard employe as saying he beat the tot "at least 50 times" and branded her with a hot stove-lid lifter "because I was jealous of her father."

Her young mother, Helen Wolf, a domestic, is held on a charge of assault and battery and attempt to kill, Gray said.

The child, with a brain injury and half of her bruised body paralyzed, died at Sunbury hospital, where she had lain unconscious five days.

Gray said that Barrick, held at Juniata county jail, Mifflintown, had "spent all day praying on his knees that the child would live."

Gray quoted Barrick as saying: "I was in love with Helen and she made me mad by always talking of the other man."

He quoted the mother as saying: "I don't like Paul any more. My baby's dead. I'm all choked up. I can't say anything."

INTER-RACIAL BODY ASKS SCHOOL AID

Wants Federal Monies for State Education.

A state-wide conference of the Georgia Committee on Interracial Co-operation was held here last night with more than 100 members attending. Dr. R. L. Russell, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Gainesville, presided.

Opening address was delivered by Dr. Walter D. Cocking, of Athens. Principal business was the approval of the Harrison-Thomas bill for federal aid to education, now before the United States senate. Telegrams supporting the measure were sent to all Georgia senators and representatives.

Meeting in the library of Atlanta University, the conference also went on record as approving the state educational program for the last year. Needs of negro schools were considered.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 4, 1939.

BRAZIL, ARGENTINA AND THE U. S.

There has developed, as the result of the visit to Washington of Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, a situation which may bring about a much-to-be-desired triangular agreement on trade between the three nations of Brazil, Argentina and the United States.

If such an agreement can be consummated, it will be a powerful weapon in the struggle of the American democracies to block German influence in South America and to checkmate programs of Nazi propaganda infiltration among the peoples to the south of us.

Brazil, through Dr. Aranha, has proposed to purchase her future supplies of wheat from the United States. As a prospective new customer of approximately $23,000,000 annual capacity, the wheat farmers of the midwest would hail Brazil with joy. At one stroke that would bring a market for about one-third of the United States surplus wheat.

However, if Brazil buys wheat in this country, Argentina would lose. For now Argentina is supplying Brazil her wheat. And thus, while the arrangement would draw more closely together in economic interests this country and Brazil—which has always been one of the best of friends to the United States—it might serve to alienate the growing affections of the Argentine people.

A proposal has been made, however, whereby the three nations would make a triangular trade treaty. Under this Argentina would continue to sell wheat to Brazil, Brazil would continue to sell her coffee to this country and the United States would continue to sell her manufactured products, such as automobiles, agricultural machinery, etc., to the Argentine. The three transactions would about offset each other and would fit in with the present import-export picture between the three countries.

As it is, at present, the Argentine, which buys more from the United States than she sells to us, lacks credits for purchases in this country. In this condition, that country has turned to "barter" arrangements with Germany, under which Nazi-manufactured goods are exchanged for Argentinean wheat and other raw materials. Such an agreement, however, provides neither cash nor credit for dealing with other countries.

Brazil's chief interest is the stabilization of her financial condition. She already sells more to the United States than she purchases and it is foreseen that her buying here will naturally tend to increase. By reason of her exports to this country of her principal crop, coffee, she has for years enjoyed a favorable trade balance.

Consummation of such a tripartite commercial agreement among the three countries is much to be desired. It would be advantageous to our trade with Latin America and, more important, would serve to strengthen those common interests which must ever seek to keep both the Americas free of totalitarian theories of government.

CURING DEAFNESS

The number of deaf adults in the next generation, according to the American Medical Association News, could be reduced by 50 per cent. This conclusion is based on the belief of technicians who have made an intensive study of the problem, that overgrowth of lymphoid, gland-like tissue, in the pharynx just above the soft palate, is the starting point of deafness.

"If school children in the grades were examined with a nasopharyngoscope at least once a year," it is stated, "and those with an over growth of lymphoid tissue were treated with X-ray as often as necessary, deafness could be reduced by half in the next generation.

'This abnormal growth partially obstructs the tubes, causes an oversecretion of mucus, which further impairs function, and produces a cronic irritation in the tubes and middle ears. If this overgrowth is allowed to go on untreated, the deafness progresses by involving one octave after another toward the low end of the scale. It becomes evident only when the tones in the speech range are affected. Thus the primary cause may be insidiously damaging the hearing apparatus for several years before it is recognized."

Because of the location of these enlarged tissues it is considered impossible to remove them surgically without further damaging the tubes. But safe treatments by X-rays or radium will reduce the size and inhibit growth. Overgrowth of lymphoid tissue, however, gradually disappears between the ages of 11 and 17. Thus, if damage is to be averted every means of improving the general condition of health and of preventing recurring infections must be resorted to during early chilhood.

Slowly, but surely, medical science is removing physical defects which, only a few years ago, were taken for granted as impossible to overcome.

THE SOUTHERN STEPCHILD

Despite the fact that the Democratic party—to which the south gives all its political allegiance—has held the reins of federal government for seven years, and despite that same administration's frequent lamentations over low incomes and economic lag in the south, once more the statistics show that federal expenditures in the south average far lower than in other sections of the country.

During 1938, according to figures compiled by the National Industrial Conference Board, the southern states, generally, received far less in federal relief expenditures, per capita, than the states of the north, the east and the west. Highest payments of all, ranging from $101 to $54 per capita, were made in eight states of the mountain and northwest regions, while the lowest payments, all below $20 and some as low as $13 per capita, were made in the south. The only states not southern included in those getting less than $20 per capita are Maine, New Jersey and Connecticut. It is interesting to note that Georgia, perennially loyal to the Democratic party, received relief expenditures last year amounting only to $14 per capita. Maine, one of the two states which went Republican in 1936, received the same amount. Could it be because the powers-that-be concede there is no likelihood of either state changing its party affiliations?

Only three states received less than Georgia. They are Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia, which each got $13 per capita.

Nevada was the most favored state, getting $101 per capita. Others in the "$50 and over" group are Montana, South Dakota, Wyoming, North Dakota, New Mexico, Arizona and Idaho. The only strictly southern state receiving more than $20 per capita is Mississippi, whose figure is placed at $21.

This story is not new. Similar figures have been the rule ever since the beginning of federal relief expenditures, ever since the "pump priming" program of the national administration was launched.

It appears, irrefutably, to be utterly illogical. The states which are in greatest need, according to all social and economic statistics and according to the oft-expressed views of the government itself, receive the least. And those most prosperous, in any event, are beneficiaries of the greatest federal generosity.

It has frequently been charged that distribution of federal funds, for any purpose, is not uninfluenced by political consideration. This may not be true as regards distribution of federal relief moneys. It seems inconceivable that anyone would permit human relief needs to be used as a pawn in the political game.

Yet it is impossible not to notice that, generally speaking, heaviest federal relief expenditures have been made in those states which are, normally, in the politically doubtful column.

ATLANTA AND AVIATION

Once more Atlanta has been given warning that aviation facilities of the city must be carefully surveyed and expanded to prepare for a future as the sky hub of the south, or face a curtailment of service to this city as some other municipality provides the requirements of major air lines.

Aviation fields cannot be constructed overnight, nor can extensions to present fields be prepared within weeks. Both must be obtained through intelligent planning and the provision of sufficient time.

Candler field today affords air lines using the field the minimum facilities necessary for convenience and safety. Commercial traffic is utilizing more and more field time as services already operating through and from Atlanta expand under an increased volume of patronage.

In the near future it is probable that at least two new routes will have their terminus at the municipal airport, and that larger planes will be necessary on at least one present route. This means the private flying at the field will have to be restricted and the city will be faced with an immediate necessity for field extension at a cost far in excess of that which would be required today.

The immediate needs are for a subsidiary field, for which an excellent site has been surveyed at old Camp Gordon, and for an extension of runways at Candler field which will take care of the needs of larger craft used in commercial service.

Atlanta grew rich because of one factor. It was and is a railroad hub. It can grow even greater and richer through provision of proper facilities for its aviation industry. The alternative of an intelligent air program will be retrogression to the position of a way station for the transportation in the skies. It is not a matter for procrastination. Next year may be too late.

Chamberlain says a war preparations race will bankrupt all who take part. Let us think then of any fighting sentiment here as the spirit of 77B.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

(From the Nashville Banner).

America would not permit two foreign armies to come over here to stage their hostilities.

America would not permit one foreign army to come over here to attack her institutions, assault her citizens, overthrow her government and unfurl the swastika, the hammer and sickle, or any foreign flags where Old Glory has waved these many years.

America should not permit the forerunners of these armies, minions of these governments, oathbound to these flags, no less vicious and no less bent on destruction of this government, to preach and practice violence with propaganda that would not be tolerated with arms.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE SENATE AND FOREIGN POLICY WASHINGTON, March 3.—In the debate on the armament bill, Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, has imitated Patrick Henry. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, has discovered several "vivid contemplations" in Washington's farewell address. And Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, has committed an oration. In fact, the senate, which is expected to pass the measure quite easily, has been more than usually articulate, not to say verbose, on the subject of the armament bill.

Meanwhile, tension in foreign affairs has slackened. In Europe, the situation seems less darkly menacing. At home, such silly but exciting incidents as the military affairs committee's agitation over the French airplane purchase are things of the past. It's a good time to try to discover what lies behind all the sound and fury, and particularly what the senate really thinks about foreign policy. A wise and experienced diplomat, long stationed in Washington, used to wire his puzzled foreign office about once a month:

SENSIBLE SENATOR The most interesting single response received in a careful inquiry into senate sentiment came from Robert A. Taft, of Ohio. Though a freshman senator, his standing in the Republican party is guaranteed by his excellent chance to be its nominee in '40. A representative of the isolationist midlands and a stalwart isolationist himself, he is also an extremely shrewd fellow. Approaching the problem from a political angle, he doubted the wisdom of an immediate hullabaloo about the President's foreign course.

"We've just gained an advantage on domestic issues," he said. "Why move the theater of debate to foreign affairs, where we may have to convince the people all over again?"

The background of the Taft remark is a clear distinction which he makes between active intervention abroad, and mere passive support for the European democracies and protection of our own interests. For example, for all his isolationism, he found nothing but the method to disapprove in the French airplane sale, and is ready to consider a judicious use of government credit to assist American export trade in the struggle with the Fascist nations. And he does not think that, on the evidence, the President can be convicted of active intervention. His attitude, therefore, differs sharply from that of the small but loud-talking group of senators who advocate an hysterical shrinking within our own borders. The Gallup poll indicates that there is widespread popular support for the Taft attitude, and, that being the case, as might be suspected, there is much support for it in the senate.

MYSTERY AND ORATORY Among the numerous senators questioned, only such known extremists as Vandenberg advocated American withdrawal from all foreign contacts. A large middle group echoed Taft. A smaller number, chiefly of southerners who have little respect for the new-fangled ideas of the neutrality bloc, were downright aggressive, in the manner of Senator Tom Connally, of Texas. In fact, the most striking result of the inquiry was its revelation of the degree of sentiment for a businesslike policy, of assisting our friends abroad and guarding our own interests when no risk or expense to ourselves is involved.

The trouble was that this sentiment was private, and the men who voiced it, much troubled. The specific things the President has done to assist the democracies or assert American rights were not found to be troubling. The worry arose from the President's methods, and from his alarmist and often threatening tone in foreign affairs. As one man put it:

"He's given us alternate doses of mystery and oratory until we don't know where we stand, and fear the worst."

Given the sentiment for a businesslike policy, the President might even, conceivably, have procured repeal of the arms embargo clauses of the neutrality act on a cash-and-carry basis, if he had asked for it calmly and factually. As it is, however, if such a request were presented now, it would find the senate in a serious state of jitters. His methods and his tone have convinced many senators that, while doing much they think reasonable, the President harbors dangerous intentions. And that conviction, since it is the senate, not the President, which really counts, is what is confusing American foreign policy today.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A touch of springtime in the air
Makes birds and housemaids sing,
Affects me, too, for truth to tell,
Spring is a balmy thing!

The Villain Still Pursues Her.

From March 25, which is a Saturday, through April 1—another Saturday—the showboat "Dixie Belle," will tie up at the wharf on the Mississippi at Vicksburg. The barker will step ashore and announce to all within hearing that the stupendous, heart-stirring, romantic (relieved with side-splitting comedy) melodrama, "The Fireman's Flame," will be the pree-sen-ta-shun. In addition to the remarkable drama, a chorus of negro roustabouts will sing, as only they can, songs of the levees before the opening curtain and between the acts. Come one, come all. To the luxurious, vast and newly decorated show boat. Comfortable, plush upholstered seats with the newly invented, convenient holder for a gentleman's hat beneath each seat.

The place is the Clay Street Landing and the hour is half after eight o'clock each evening, ladeez and gemmen!

The peformance, to get down to modern day fact, will actually be given on the "Dixie Belle." But the performers, barker included, are members of the Vicksburg Little Theater group and the occasion is the annual "Pilgrimage Time in Dixie." But the old play, of the Gay Nineties vintage, will be given exactly as it was when our grandparents thought the showboats the ultimate in refined places of entertainment. Costumes and scenery and all.

It might well prove worth the time and effort to arrange a day or two of vacation between March 25 and April 1, get out the family bus and ride down to Vicksburg. To meet all the folks, down on the levee.

We Are Improving.

Just to show that the race is improving, here is an extract from that great old magazine, published in Atlanta in 1866, "Scott's Monthly."

"In no civilized country has drunkenness been so prevalent as in the United States. So notorious was this forty years ago, that English reviewers and French journals did not scruple to stigmatize us as 'a nation of drunkards.' We are sorry to confess that reliable statistics almost justify the imputation.

"Too many of our young men, dispirited by the overthrow of the Confederacy, and many even of riper years, disheartened by the reverses of business, are seeking solace or oblivion in the maddening wine-cup.

"It is high time that the pulpit and the press should warn the people, and particularly the rising generation, against this growing evil. Our cities and towns are crowded with these hostelries that line "the primrose path to perdition" Under the sanction of state or municipal license, they are impoverishing and imbruting the youth of this country. Is there no man that has the courage and the ability to stand in the breach and hurl back this advancing tide of ruin? Religion, humanity and patriotism long for the advent of this 'coming man.'"

Look at Us, Today,

If you doubt we have improved, look at the liquor stores in Atlanta, at any time. They are the quietest and most well-conducted of any places of business. In fact, customers seem to be so rare that it is matter of wonder how many of them are able to continue in business. And, when there is a customer, he is usually in earnest and very quiet consultation with the clerk.

Of course, that writer of 1866 may have been exaggerating. Perhaps conditions weren't so bad, even then, as he depicted them. For you come across people even today who seem to become so enthusiastic in viewing with alarm that they lose all sense of proportion.

Letters come in, occasionally, from some worthy and well-intentioned soul who seems to believe that all the young people of today are little better than besotted victims of the alcohol habit, that our boys and girls spend all their leisure moments in horrible dens of debauchery, gulping gallons of whisky and indulging in orgies impossible to describe in a decent publication.

Now, you and I know, as observing, reasonably intelligent people, that this is not so.

The present young generation is, in my opinion, just about the finest that ever was. They are better than our generation, at least, and there were one or two sober, decent and respectable young folks when we were adolescents.

If there were no young people then, save those already committed to ruin, where did all the good middle-aged folks of today come from?

And there are better young men and women, in larger proportion, among the young of today than were alive when you and I were young, Maggie.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Wednesday, March 4, 1914:

"Washington, March 3.—President Wilson will personally address a joint session of congress Thursday advocating repeal of the clause in the Panama canal act which exempts American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Critics With Unclean Hands NEW YORK, March 3.—It takes no very keen nose for fraud to scent the fake in some expressions of indignation which have been heard since the D. A. R. refused to rent its hall in Washington for a recital by a negro woman singer.

Labor organizations have enforced an exclusion policy against many worthy Americans for years. Some unions have denied negroes the right to work in certain occupations because they were negroes and for no other reason. Some have denied white men, as well as negroes, the right to work in occupations over which the unions have established monopolies.

In one notorious case a moving picture job trust demands an initiation fee of $1,000 and refuses to accept new members, even though they be able to dig up the extortionate price of a union card, without which it is impossible to obtain work and the applicant can prove that he is an artist as well as an American citizen in good standing.

Union Censorship? One of the CIO unions, dominated by a Stalinist group of Communists, would, if it had sufficient strength to enforce its program, deny expression to artists in the literary line if they refused to take membership and thereby acquiesce in policies imposed by the Stalinists. Such Americans, artists or not, also would have to contribute money to the political program of an organization which they believe to be un-American or anti-American.

I use the word "artist" in a very careless sense. It is hard to say whether or not a writer is an artist, but, for that matter, is singing ever art?

Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the D. A. R. because by continuing to be a member she would seem to acquiesce in a policy of which she disapproved, to-wit, the exclusion of negro performers from the hall in Washington. The D. A. R. will find among those who ridicule and detest it for this act of exclusion men and women who make a great virtue of their racial tolerance but are guilty of political intolerance equally narrow and vastly more threatening to the rights and independence of American citizens.

Good Publicity Marian Anderson, the victim of a not-too-painful martyrdom in Washington, was excluded from one hall by a ruling which instantly defeated its purpose and made famous a hitherto obscure singer. Even if the D. A. R. persists she will be barred from only that particular hall, and there is something about the D. A. R.'s conduct in the present controversy which gives one to suspect that the sisters may "out-last word" Mrs. Roosevelt with an explanation vindicating their position.

If the D. A. R.'s action proves to have been correctly reported, it will be a pleasure to join in the indorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt's action. But those who do applaud should be compelled to show clean hands in this test which would eliminate some of the loudest members of the Communist claque.

PETER AND CORNELIUS.

Sunday's lesson, Acts 10:1-48, presents four major points: first, the vision of Cornelius, the Roman centurion, while at prayer in his home at Caesarea, and the trance of Peter while at prayer in his house at Joppa; second, the journey of the messengers from Caesarea to Joppa and Peter's journey from Joppa to Caesarea; third, the sermon of Peter at the house of Cornelius; fourth, the criticism of Peter for eating in the house of a Gentile and the apostle's defense of himself.

Please note at the outset that both Cornelius and Peter were at prayer in their homes when God appeared to them—a striking testimony for the family altar. Do we give God an opportunity to speak to us in our homes?

National and racial prejudice are strongly reflected in this lesson. Space forbids details discussion of the background of the two men. Suffice it to say, Peter was convinced that God meant what He said through Isaiah, the prophet, "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else," Isaiah 45:22. And Cornelius was convinced that God was speaking to him, directing him to His servant who would preach Jesus Christ to him as the Saviour of the world.

Peter's sermon at the house of Cornelius emphasized seven great truths, namely, that the gospel is from God, that the gospel is for every man, that the gospel is in Christ, that the gospel is to be witnessed unto, that it is the gospel of the past, that it is the gospel of the present, and that it is the gospel of all hope for the future.

Further, this lesson clearly teaches that all races need the gospel, that all races are responsive to the gospel, that the gospel should be given to all races, and that every race should proclaim the gospel. This lesson leaves no possible ground for anyone to claim that any race or nation can lay claim to preference in God's plan of salvation. "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." "And the spirit and the bride say, come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." "God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth Tim, and worketh righteousness, is accepted of Him. The Word which God sent unto the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ, He is Lord of all. To Him give all the phophets witness, that through His Name whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

INDUSTRY AND STABILITY It might be fair to ask what an industrialist, with a million or so dollars to invest in a new plant, would expect of a state wherein he might locate.

The industrialists are turning to the south as the section where exists the greatest opportunity for markets and raw materials. This turning of industrial eyes will be increased once the freight differentials are adjusted.

So, it is fair to ask what would be considered and what would be found in Georgia. The corporate laws are improved. They are fair enough. There are some laws which are considered restrictive but on the whole the general situation is not bad.

Nevertheless, it must be admitted that if an industrialist were eyeing Georgia with the idea of putting a plant costing a million and a half which would create jobs for 600 or 1,000 men, he would pause and perhaps pass on.

He would not discover any aspect of fiscal or political stability. He might overestimate the situation. Persistent inquiry might reveal an acceptable situation. Yet, it must be confessed the average industrialist would be frightened away.

He would discover the income tax law, set up little more than a year ago, being amended to change his tax expense. It so happens it increases his expense. But whether increase or decrease, what he is looking for is some indication of a stable tax system. He would discover the legislature offering taxes, some fantastic, on all manner of business and industry. He would find no indication that next year or two years from now there would not be a complete revision of what finally is set up for the present. He would have no idea what might happen to his own business. He could not possibly interpret the legislative action as looking toward a stable policy of taxation. Therefore, it is fair to ask whether the industrialist planning expansion in the south would be attracted to Georgia? All the natural advantages are here. There is lacking evidence of stability in taxation and government policy.

"TAX HIM—NOT ME" Human nature being what it is, it is perfectly natural that no one wants to be taxed but always thinks the other fellow is the perfect set-up for supplying revenue through taxation.

Nevertheless, it ought to be obvious that any system of taxation which "spots" its taxation is neither equitable nor satisfactory. It never will supply a stable income. It will be variable. Every Governor for the past seven or eight administrations has urged tax revision and the establishment of some system which will be a fair one and which will enable the inhabitants of the small counties to pay their share, small as it will be, to the upkeep of the state. As yet no legislature has been willing to attack the problem with a frontal assault. The plan has been to add a few more patches to the tax system and hope the blowout won't come during that administration. The sad fact is the blowout has come. The state is broke. Meanwhile the very human cry is, "Don't tax me—tax him."

The legislature very properly is concerned about waste of the taxpayers' money. It ought, as far as possible, safeguard that money. A sound system of taxation, with the allocation features eliminated, would make this possible. As long as there are allocations and a hodge-podge of taxes there cannot be any systematic presentation to the taxpayer of where his money goes.

Meanwhile, business, new industrial prospects, unpaid teachers and the plain pee-pul await some sort of action.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE Mr. Roosevelt, landing yesterday at Charleston, announced the south could not recover until the industrialists of the south could prosper and the people buy until the industrialists increase their wages 50 per cent.

This is an old statement and yet it continues to be rather unusual. Without having seen a single set of books possessed by any of the southern industrialists, it is a fact that business is not all it once was or all it might be. Asking the industrialists, who already may be hunting for markets, to increase his wages 50 per cent is hardly compatible with the hard facts. If the industrialists cannot find markets; if the freight rates add to his woes; if the new governmental restrictions have imposed new expenses, it does not exactly seem cricket to now denounce him for not increasing wages 50 per cent until something is done for his income.

Especially is this true since the industries of the south are under the wages and hours act, which is federal legislation. There is little, very little difference, in the wages paid skilled labor in the south and in the east. Skilled labor makes about the same wages, north, east, south or west. So, the same criticism would apply anywhere if it is to apply at all.

It has come to be a popular custom to deliver a swift kick at the seat of the south's pants. The swift kick may not be at all times justified. I am reminded of the campaign song of the late Champ Clark:

"Every time they come to town,
The boys start kicking my dog aroun'.
It makes no difference if he is a hound',
They gotta quit kickin' my dog aroun'."

The south has some fleas and it may, in health and education, be a sort of houn'. But I'm tired of them kicking my dog aroun'.

Another Letter From A Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

Since your teacher got you interested in stories of the Revolution, you have become an ardent patriot. I heartily approve; but before your ideas become any more definite, it might be well to make sure that you know what patriotism is.

Some important men seem to regard it as nothing more than appreciation of a good thing. They love America as the pioneers loved a cow—because it costs them little and they can milk it.

But selfishness isn't patriotism. The poorest patriot may like the country that makes him rich. He would feel an equal affection for any land that gave him an equal profit.

Patriotism, you say, is love of country, and that is quite correct. But what is a country?

You sing, "I love thy rocks and rills, thy woods and templed hills," and so you do. Familiar scenery becomes dear to us. But it takes more than forests and rivers and meadows to make the country we love.

If all Americans except yourself were removed and replaced by Chinese or Turks, would you love the country as well? On the contrary, you would feel as much a stranger as you would now in China or Turkey.

People make the country. You love the kind of towns we have—the schools, churches, movie houses, stores, filling stations; the kind of food we have, the newspapers and magazines, the machines and gadgets; the songs and music and slang—in fact, all the dear familiar things that combine to make America. But all of these things are what they are because our people are like they are.

America is not a mere place, but 130,000,000 of our kind of people. If you don't love the people, you don't love the country.

If a poor man hates rich ones or a rich man despises poor ones, somebody should say to them: "You would be buddies in time of war. Does it take a war to teach you understanding?"

You can't be a patriot and scorn some section of your country, or loathe part of the people, or wish to injure some group.

The people are your people, the flesh and blood and soul of your country. If you wish to serve your country, find some way to serve the people who make it America.

Love, DAD.

Army Appropriation Okayed

$499,851,936 Is Voted Without Amendments in Unique House Action; Nye Condemns President

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) A record-breaking $499,857,936 appropriation bill for the army won house approval today amid warnings in the senate that congressional failure to keep close tabs on American foreign policy might drag the nation into war.

The huge supply measure, largest since 1922 and carrying the first funds for a proposed $300,000,000 expansion of the air corps, rolled through the house without a record vote or a single amendment.

Action Unique.

Representative Snyder, Democrat, Pennsylvania, in charge of the bill on the floor, declared the fact that no amendments were offered was without parallel in the nation's constitutional history and constituted "a firm expression of America's attitude toward such dictatorships as might attempt to disturb the peace of the western hemisphere."

The measure carried actual funds for the operation of the army and is distinct from a measure which the house passed two weeks ago and which "authorizes" a $358,000,000 expansion of the army, including the air corps. The latter measure carries no funds.

In addition to the purchase of 784 military planes, mostly combat types, today's bill would provide for reinforcement of seacoast defenses, for semi-automatic rifles, anti-tank guns, modernized field artillery and mobile anti-aircraft guns.

Attaches Attacked.

Shortly before acting on the measure, the house heard Representative Collins, Democrat, Mississippi, frequent critic of army policies, declare that if recent reports of Germany's tremendous air power were true, American military and naval attaches abroad were "asleep on the job" and should be "eliminated from the service."

Collins declared that while he was disposed to doubt the accuracy of the reports, he suggested that if they were true the house military committee might well summon the naval, military and air attaches involved "and demand an accounting."

Nye Blast.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the capitol, Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, claimed before the senate during its consideration of the $358,000,000 army expansion bill, that the President's control over foreign policy might conceivably place congress in a position where it would be forced to declare war almost against its will.

Senator Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, who has been jousting verbally with Nye over foreign policy, took the floor after the North Dakotan had concluded and vehemently challenged Nye's statement of several days ago that there would be no war in Europe unless the United States gave the word.

"Where is the man or group of men who holds the key to war?" Lucas shouted. He declared Nye's conclusion was arrived at in "the mysterious realm of speculation and conjecture."

MADRID STIFFENS, THWARTS POWERS

Cabinet Ready To Elect President.

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—The Madrid government, now deprived of the recognition of Britain and France, is embarrassing these two countries by apparently stiffening its resistance to the Nationalists and thwarting the two democracies' attempts to bring an early end to the Spanish civil war.

The Republicans were stubbornly holding onto their capital today, and also to the one-fourth of the country still in their hands.

The Nationalists rushed truckloads of food toward Madrid, counting on an early surrender and believing the population is hungry.

The Republicans asserted, however, the food situation had improved, and the cabinet prepared to elect a successor to President Manuel Azana in accordance with the constitution.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE AFTER SEPARATION

Daughter-in-Law of Tobacco Executive Thought Self Burden to Parents.

SUMMIT, N. J., March 3.—(AP) Chief Roy A. Martin, of the Union county detectives, said tonight that Mrs. Elizabeth Schroeder Hummel, 23-year-old daughter-in-law of George H. Hummel, wealthy tobacco company executive, had attempted suicide because she felt she was a burden to her parents.

Martin said he had received a statement from the young woman, who has been in Overlook hospital since Monday night suffering from a revolver wound which, the detective chief said, she admitted today was self-inflicted.

Meanwhile, Detective Earl Lovely, of Summit police, admitted, Martin said, that he had promised Mrs. Hummel there would be no publicity on the case.

Mrs. Hummel's statement, Martin said, blamed the shooting on the fact that she was unable to find work after separating from her husband, Edwin C. Hummel, 36, and believed she was a burden to her parents, with whom she had been living two months.

"I thought I was in their way and I wanted to die," Martin quoted her as saying.

2 JAPANESE ARMIES INFIERCEOFFENSIVES

20 American Missionaries Reported in Criss-Cross Paths.

SHANGHAI, March 4.—(Saturday)—(AP)—Two powerful Japanese armies, using tanks and bombing planes, pressed campaigns today on widely separated fighting fronts in China.

A fierce battle was reported in inland Hupeh province where the Japanese were attempting to advance up the Yangtze river west of Hankow.

In Kiangsu province, on the coast north of Shanghai, another Japanese army was waging a mop-up drive north of the Yangtze river in an area bounded by the Yellow river, Yellow sea, Grand canal and Lunghai railroad.

At least 20 American missionaries were within the battle zone marked out by criss-crossing Japanese columns in northeast Kiangsu, a nominally Japanese-conquered territory. The invaders' objective, apparently, was Haichow, the only port north of Shanghai still in Chinese hands.

Among Americans listed were the Rev. and Mrs. Wilfred McLaughlin, of Wadesboro, N. C., and the Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Currie and two children, of Richmond, Va., at Haichow; J. N. Montgomery, of Birmingham, Ala., and Miss J. U. Wood, of Morristown, Tenn., at Hwaian.

Also Miss Grace Farr, of Jonesville, S. C., the Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Lancaster and child, of Ashland, Va.; Miss Margaret Mizell, of Brownwood, Texas; Dr. R. B. Price and R. P. Richardson, of Memphis, Tenn., at Taichow.

BUND UNDER FIRE OF N.Y. AUTHORITIES

Kuhn Asks Police Guard for Home After Revealing Address in Court.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—State and city agencies began prying today into many of the secrets of the pro-Nazi German-American bund.

Served yesterday with a subpoena ordering production of all records at bund headquarters, Fritz Kuhn, national leader, testified lengthily today at a city inquiry into bund tax payments.

In a Brooklyn magistrate's courtroom guarded by 60 policemen, Kuhn was arraigned earlier in the day on a Jewish lawyer's charge of criminal libel and reluctantly made public his home address.

Declaring he and his family frequently had been threatened, he immediately requested police protection for his home.

Disclosure of the names of officials of the bund's weekly newspaper, meanwhile, was promised at a hearing on a supreme court order requiring the paper to show cause why it should not be banned for failure to publish the names.

Counsel was granted an adjournment until Thursday to give the paper, Deutscher Weckruf and Beobachter, time to comply with state law and publish the names in its next Tuesday's issue.

Ten officials and employes of the bund and three affiliated organizations, including the publishing company, were subpoenaed for the tax inquiry.

Commissioner of Investigation William B. Herlands appeared to be satisfied with the first three-hour session of the inquiry and announced it would be resumed Monday, but he disclosed no details.

SAYS ITALY TAKING FRENCH TERRITORY

Paris Cabinet Member Demands Reinforcements in Somaliland.

PARIS, March 3.—(AP)—Colonial Minister Georges Mandel, urging "massive reinforcements" of troops to defend French Somaliland against "Italian infiltration," revealed today what appeared to be a cabinet split over empire defense and diplomacy.

Members of the senate colonial committee said Mandel criticized Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet's handling of the Japanese occupation of the island of Hainan, which lies near French Indo-China, as "do nothing" diplomacy.

Mandel was said to have astounded the colonial committee by declaring Britain had indicated she would not support France if the French "look for trouble" in East Africa.

The colonial minister was quoted by senators as having said that Italian troops, for "some months," had been establishing military posts on the French side of the boundary with Italian Ethiopia, behind French posts.

He reported that an apparent Italian effort to boycott the Somaliland port of Djibouti, major outlet for Ethiopia, had failed. Trade suddenly was said to have become normal two weeks ago after two months of attempted boycott.

Little Real Democratic Rule in U.S., Dr. Gosnell Tells Federal Leaders

Emory Professor Cites Unfair Tariffs Hurting South, Declares Roosevelt One of Few Great Democrats, in Address Before Business Group.

The final test of a democratic government is whether it extends equal rights to all and special privileges to none, Dr. Cullen B. Gosnell, of Emory University, said yesterday.

Speaking before the quarterly meeting of the Atlanta Federal Business Association, an organization made up of the heads of the various federal agencies and offices in Atlanta, Gosnell said people were in the unfortunate habit of discussing democracy without knowing its fundamentals, or investigating its founders.

"Government itself," he quoted, "is a social institution by which persons do things that they cannot do for themselves individually."

"Democratic government," he quoted again, "is difficult to define, but may be said to be a government which reflects the will of the masses."

He was doubtful if, by Jefferson's definition of equal rights and no special privileges, we have had much real democratic government in America. He pointed out that protective tariffs, "a special privilege to the eastern industrial group which has drained the south of more than $80,000,000,000," were levied early in our history as a democracy.

Of all our presidents, no more than six have been truly great democrats, Gosnell said, naming Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

As regards the White House incumbent, Gosnell said that while it is difficult to evaluate a man during his lifetime, he believed that President Roosevelt was honestly trying to carry on the work of Jefferson and Jackson.

He said that while Roosevelt, counter to the Jeffersonian definition of democracy had subsidized laborers and farmers, it was in an effort to balance subsidies his predecessors had granted to other groups. According to Gosnell, special privileges to all are the same in the end as special privileges to none.

The speaker was introduced by O. E. Myers, president of the association, and manager of the Fifth Civil Service District office here.

Hides Self From Voters —And Wins by Landslide

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 3.—(AP)—A. M. Crim's plan of campaign for the office of police magistrate was mildly revolutionary, but it worked.

The 79-year-old candidate didn't solicit a single vote. He stayed in his office because he said he did not want the voters "to see too much of me," and he saved his election cards.

But he received more votes than any of the 69 candidates in the municipal primary. His nearest opponent got about one-half as many votes.

PARLEY IS PLANNED BY VEGETABLE MEN

Growers' Problems, Development Plans To Be Discussed March 8.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CLARKSTON, Ga., March 3.—Plans for the further development of the vegetable growing industry in Georgia will be discussed by members of the Georgia Vegetable Growers' Association at their fifth annual meeting to be held at the Georgia Experiment Station near Griffin Wednesday, President R. F. Sams said here today.

Thomas L. Ayers, principal economist of the southern division of the AAA in Washington, will speak, discussing such problems as unproductive soil, restricted marketing outlets, low per capita income in their relation to the agricultural conservation program, and the contribution that the program can make toward the solution of these problems.

Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, will discuss efforts being made to increase the service of the seven state farmers' markets to the growers of the state; B. H. Hendrickson, of the Soil Conservation Service, Athens, will speak on "Vegetables in the Scheme of Soil Conservation," and a representative of the Chain Store Council will outline plans whereby chain stores can cooperate further with Georgia growers through vegetable promotion and consumer-grower campaigns.

W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph, and J. E. Bailey, who is developing a new market for seed Irish potatoes, also are scheduled on the program.

Another feature of the meeting will be the showing of color movies by the State Department of Entomology on the Japanese beetle and white-fringed beetle.

An inspection of grain and vegetable trial plots, electric hotbeds and experimental work with pimientos and the cabbage-collared also will feature the program.

DEKALB DIRECTORY USES NEW SYSTEM

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"The cattle are grazing,
Their heads never raising,
They are forty feeding like one."

Contentment and peace "down on the farm" are not yet in sight for this or any other part of America, but farming is the south's way, and a good way, and they serve this region best who seek through contribution or good counsel to make southern agriculture the successful and happy thing it can be in better circumstance. By way of emphasizing the fact that farming is not merely a business but a way of life and the best of all ways, our friend, Hugh MacRae, of Wilmington, N. C., is fond of proposing that the name of the United States Department of Agriculture be changed to "Department of Rural Life." When Mr. MacRae takes you sight-seeing among the farmers he has set up in business near Wilmington under his colonization plan he does not tell you that this farmer or that one is doing well and making a good living. He says, rather, "they are happy in that family," "they enjoy life in this one over here."

Agriculture is a precious thing in the south both for its economic and for its spiritual contribution, and that is why we agree so whole-heartedly with those southerners, conservative and progressive alike, who praise the work of the federal government in rural rehabilitation.

Because this work was undertaken by the New Deal administration, some of those whose opposition permits of no exception and no sense, damn it with all the other things undertaken by the present administration. But the time has come when the much that is good in the New Deal needs remembering amidst the much that was not so good, and rural rehabilitation belongs in the first division. It needs to be applauded, and, in addition, it needs to be retained and increased. The Florida Times-Union, which wastes no love on the present administration, has nevertheless suggested repeatedly in its editorial columns that the federal government should broaden its rural rehabilitation program. As a means of striking what it calls "an economic balance in the country," The Times-Union declares that "rehabilitation of rural families is a fundamentally sound undertaking and has far-reaching and permanent results." As a result of the work of the Farm Security Administration in Florida, it points out, the average net worth of farmers who have borrowed from it has increased from $252 in 1935 to $1,119 in 1936, to $1,503 in 1937, to $1,576 in 1938.

The soundest American philosophers, from Thomas Jefferson down, have agreed that the only healthy and sure base for a democracy like ours is a great body of small, independent, and successful farmers. If the federal government can do anything (and obviously it can do a great deal) to make our small farmers independent and successful it need not blush for the paternalism or the "interference" or even for the money spent. Especially when, in comparison with what has been spent on other federal projects, the amount is so small.

Many other intelligently conservative forces in the south are reminding us now that merely getting done with the New Deal is no answer to present problems. Listen to Peter Molyneaux in his Texas Weekly: "Something happened in 1929, after 10 years of Republican rule, and the whole country was prostrated. The superstitions of the economic soothsayers about the 'business cycles' and that sort of twaddle do not stand up as satisfactory explanations of what happened. And the country is not going to recover and resume orderly progress merely by kicking out the New Dealers and letting the 'business leaders' alone to reconstruct prosperity in their own way . . . This mess we are in was up to our necks before the New Deal was ever heard of. The New Deal didn't get us into it, and getting rid of the New Deal is not going to get us out of it . . ."

We can think of no one more interested in "getting rid of the New Deal" than Peter Molyneaux. But he is too intelligent an observer to look upon that as a cure-all or to deny the usefulness of some of the New Deal's enterprises.

INCOME TAX HELPS

Are you tearing your hair trying to figure out whether you can take a credit for helping to support grandma? Or the difference between an earned income credit, and a surtax net income? Or whether you got any taxable interest on government obligations? And did you have a net short-term gain from the sale or exchange of capital assets last year? And if not, why not? Is that loan you made to Brother John last year and which he hasn't paid, deductible as a bad debt? And how much gasoline taxes can you deduct?

If you need help in figuring out your income tax return this year, our Service Bureau's bulletin on Federal Income Tax will probably solve many of these problems for you, and prevent you from cheating Uncle Sam or cheating yourself.

LOVE COMES LAST

Laura and Andy Find Themselves Alone at the Swimming Pool

By JULIA ANNE MOORE.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

With some reluctance, he explained where Laura was and why she was there, and Andy said, "It seems a shame to interrupt her writing, but I imagine Nina will insist on seeing her. Do you suppose she could run into the city for the evening?"

She could, of course, but now, suddenly, Bart's mind was playing with an idea. He said at last, "I've a better plan than that. You and Mrs. Cooper have luncheon with me and we'll drive out to Dale Cromwell's place immediately after." And when Andy protested: "It will be no trouble at all. In fact, I'd rather like to get out there and be lazy for a few hours."

So it was arranged and at luncheon Bart was struck with Andy Cooper's devotion to his pretty young wife. He seemed to anticipate her every small wish. She might have been an invalid child and he her father, so eager and gentle were his attentions. And only a blind man could have been in the girl's presence without knowing at once that she was wholeheartedly in love with this man she had married.

As they turned into the private drive that would in a moment bring them in sight of Dale Cromwell's big house, Bart told himself: This is the acid test! . . . Meaning the imminent meeting between Laura and Andy Cooper, for he still clung to the belief that if Andy were in any way involved in that part of Laura's past which she had never managed to escape, the truth would be revealed in their faces when they met.

All morning Laura had allowed Hannah to coax her from one form of idleness to another, but when at luncheon Hannah began to outline a similar program for the afternoon, she said, smiling, "I simply can't, Hannah. There's a job to be done and I'm so utterly lazy if I don't drive myself I'll be going back to the office with absolutely nothing accomplished."

Hannah accepted that without question. "All right," she said, "but beginning tomorrow why not write mornings and take the afternoons off? There's so much more to do in the afternoon."

Laura nodded agreement. "Beginning tomorrow," she said, and presently went up to her room and set up her portable. She spread her notes on the table—and found herself thinking about Hannah, whose conduct since she come here Saturday evening had been above reproach. She's a sweet girl, Laura thought, and not once has there been anything in her behavior to suggest the young termagant who slapped my face and caused her father so much uneasiness.

She thought, irritably: Never mind Hannah, get to work!

She read her notes through and was considering the possibility of eliminating at least one character when her brain performed another of its little tricks. The possiply superfluous character was one of three men in love with the heroine of the story. If he isn't essential in the plot, she told herself, I must drop him, now, before he takes flesh and blood and begins to give me trouuble. And instantly, for no reason at all, she was thinking:

If I had it to go over again, I wouldn't put Bart off as I did. There's nothing wrong with Hannah and if there were, I owe it to myself to consider my own happiness first.

But had Hannah alone been responsible for that sudden change of mind at the moment when Bart was asking her to marry him? She wasn't sure, but she was honest enough to admit that Andy may have had something to do with it. . . . But why? For her Andy existed now only as the man who had married her sister. Whatever had been between them, whatever ties remained to haunt her now, Andy Cooper, whom she had loved, was no longer a part of her world.

She thought: I'll stay here the remainder of this week and then I'll go back to New York and tell Bart I'll marry him. As he said, we'll begin together as if we hadn't lived until we met.

And there were the notes, waiting. And there was the lover who might be cut from her story, possibly without sacrificing anything important, waiting. And so the painful process went until there was a knock at the door and a maid announcing:

"Mr. Ford is here, Miss. . . . Mr. Ford and a Mr. and Mrs. Cooper."

Andy—here! She thought for a moment her heart had stopped beating.

At the bottom of the stairs Laura halted, listening—hearing the pounding of her heart against the sound of Andy's quiet laughter. Clenched fists pressed against her eightly closed eyes, she cried out in silence: I love him, I love him! I can't help it that he's married to my own sister! He's mine. He . . .

Steady, girl. Never mind what's going on inside you. He must never know. Nina must never know.

She paused, drew a deep breath, exhaled slowly and stepped into the living room.

Nine was the first to see her. She came hurrying to meet her, her greeting, "Laura, darling!" Laura took the girl in her arms, held her close. She was so dear to her, this younger sister, this Nina whom she had mothered since their mother's death.

Nina was the first to see her. held her off and looked at her, only this moment realizing how much she had missed her.

Some one was walking away from the silent group on the far side of the room. It was Andy. She knew it was Andy, but she tried not to look at him. And then he was there beside them, gently but firmly pulling Nina away.

She looked up at him then and something turned over inside her. She smiled. She said, "It's so good to see you, Andy," and thrust out a small hand that was not yet shaking but would be in a moment.

He ignored the brave little hand. "Don't I get a kiss, too?"

She closed her eyes and in a moment she was looking at him again. He had kissed her, gently, briefly, all too casually, but his significant indifference in front of Nina and these people who meant nothing to eithe rof them jerked her up as nothing else could. She was not afraid now.

She said, laughing, "A sister-in-law does get a break now and then, doesn't she?"

Watching from across the room, Bartley Ford decided that they were superb actors—that or he had been a victim of an overacting imagination. For a moment he had felt something in the air, something that flowed out from those two. And then, suddenly, it wasn't there and they were just a man and a beautiful woman looking at each other with nothing between them but the fact that the man was married to the woman's young sister.

Then she was coming toward him and there was in her eyes and in the quick, warm smile she gave him some subtly intimate quality that sent the blood racing through his veins.

"Were you very angry when you found I'd run away?" She was facing him, her back to the big room. "I tried to get you on the phone, but your man insisted you were 'indisposed'."

Bart grinned. "He never knows when to drop that alibi and pull me out of bed," he said. "How's the serial coming along?"

"Terrible. My brain goes off on excursions all the while I'm trying to concentrate on the story. I think about everything else but."

"Me, for instance?"

She laughed. "That would be telling and it might give you ideas."

"No new ones, certainly."

The four persons in the center of the room stood in pairs. Andy and Dale, Nina and Hannah. They had been talking but now there was a silence and even before she turned, Laura knew that Hannah's eyes were fastened upon her.

As she and Bart moved to join the others, Laura thought: "Bart is trying to be the gentleman about it, but privately he thinks I should have at least half the serial completed by now." She was looking at Hannah and though the girl's lips smiled, there was a question in her eyes.

Dale took charge then. Andy and Nina must see the grounds, the gardens, the swimming pool. Perhaps they would enjoy a swim . . . or a game of badminton? And of course they would all stay to dinner and tonight they would go for a sail.

Andy tried to explain that they had run out to see Laura for an hour or two and would have to go back to New York before dinner—but Nina said, "It's so much pleasanter here than in New York, Andy. And I don't know when I'll see Laurie again."

"That settles it then," Dale said, quickly. "Do anything you like, the place is yours."

Andy shrugged, smiling. "I never win an argument," he said, "and this is one I'm glad to lose. If there's an extra bathing suit handy, I think I'll splash around in the pool." He looked at Laura, quickly swung his gaze to Nina as he said, "Coming, dear?"

"Later," Nina said. "I want to see the gardens first. Take Laura along to keep you out of trouble until I arrive."

Laura nodded agreeably, taking it for granted Bart and Hannah would join them. But coming out of the house half an hour later, she found Andy sitting astride the diving tower springboard, alone, and knew then that the throaty laughter from the badminton court beyond the high wall-like hedge was Hannah's.

Andy sat near the end of the board, his hands gripping the edges as if he were contemplating a handstand dive, but when he saw Laura on the lower board he swung his long legs around and grinned down at her.

'Gosh, but it's swell to see you, Laurie," he said. "How've you been? Has New York been treating you all right?"

His tone was casual, and looking up at him she was conscious of an unwelcome pang. She thought: He's in love with Nina and—and I'm glad. . . . He was Nina's husband and Nina's husband must love Nina. But that didn't ease the pain of having to be alone with him and hear him talk as if she were some old friend he had happened upon.

U. S. Faces Big Loss on Cotton Loans

Senator Norris To Insist Same Benefits Be Given Corn, Wheat as Are in Smith Surplus Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, said today that a heavy loss to the government on its cotton loans appeared "to be the only way out of a very bad situation."

The veteran Nebraskan, earlier in the day, had forced the senate agriculture committee to delay a vote on a bill dealing with the cotton surplus situation and sponsored by Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina.

Norris, in an interview afterwards, said he probably would support the Smith bill when the committee votes on it next Thursday, but added that southern senators would have to make the same benefits available to corn, wheat and other farmers to obtain congressional approval.

The government now has more than $500,000,000 invested in loan cotton and the Smith bill would permit release of some of this after July, 1940, at a loss to the government, and grant growers an additional benefit payment this year if they kept cotton out of loans.

"We are producing cotton faster than we can consume it," Norris said. "We've got on hand more than 11,000,000 bales in government loans. That is such a large amount that everybody in the trade is afraid to buy much cotton.

"We can't afford to dump this cotton or it would break the market and the cotton farmers. It costs $44,000,000 a year to carry the loan stocks and that alone can soon eat up the government investment."

Norris said he was "Frankly disturbed by a feature of the Smith bill which would permit growers to reclaim loan cotton at 3 cents a pound in exchange for an equivalent reduction in their new crop cotton this year. This would mean a government loss of about $35 a bale.

The white-haired senator said the government made the loans to assure growers a fair price and now was asked to write off this investment by reselling the loan cotton at three cents a pound.

EASTERNERS FIGHT REVISION IN RATES

that "good cause" had been shown for legislation to "remove unjust freight rate discriminations," Chairman Lea, Democrat, California, of the house investigating committee said upon adjourning his inquiry that "nearly all witnesses have testified any adjustments necessary could be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission." Lea said the committee would turn next Tuesday to hearings of water carriers on the "whole transportation problem."

Testimony will be heard then on proposals for co-ordination between water and land transportation systems and their rate schedules.

Hill, Senator Stewart, Democrat, Tennessee, and Senator Andrews, Democrat, Florida, sharply questioned witnesses opposed to the pending freight rate legislation before their hearing adjourned, subject, Hill said, "to testimony congressmen or ICC officials may want to submit next week in executive session."

Samuel H. Williams, manager of the transportation bureau of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, spoke in opposition to proposed legislation to amend the ICC act to require that interterritorial freight rates from one territory into another "shall not exceed the level within the destination territory."

Williams said the enactment of such legislation would require the ICC to make rates from Philadelphia and other official territory points to southern and western destinations "materially higher than would be charged shippers of the same or similar articles" from the south or west to Philadelphia.

"In other words, this legislation in substance would require lower rates from Atlanta to Philadelphia than from Philadelphia to Atlanta, although the traffic would move over the same rails."

Present Rate Satisfied.

Senator Stewart asked the witness if that was "any more unfair than a present schedule" under which first-class shipments from Chattanooga to Chicago bear a rate of $1.70 per 1200 pounds while shipments from Philadelphit to Toledo, "a similar distance," rate a charge of $1.23.

"It may or may not be, depending on conditions that enter into rates," Williams said. "If it's wrong, the remedy is before the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Hill interrupted:

"If we in the south get the short end of it, you don't know whether it is unfair or not."

"Do you think," put in Stewart, "the ICC is such a body as we people of the south can trust to correct this discrimination?"

Williams replied the ICC was a "great body."

"You mean a great, big body," retorted Stewart.

The majority of today's witnesses before both committees expressed belief the ICC had authority to "remedy any inequalities" of rates which may be in existence.

Charles R. Seal, traffic director of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, said the proposed legislation "would amount to statutory rate-making by specific rule of congress, in disregard of many differences in conditions affecting transportation and the marketing of innumerable, varying conditions in different parts of the country" which the ICC takes into consideration.

Wisconsin Mayor Inspects City, Lauds 4-Year Terms for Officials

Mayor Alfred W. Bernien Calls on Hartsfield, Declares Shorter Tenures Interfere With Orderly Civic Programs.

Four-year terms for the mayors and general councils were indorsed yesterday by Mayor Alfred W. Bernien, of Reedsburg, Wis., as he called on Mayor Hartsfield at the city hall.

Accompanied by Mrs. Bernien, Mayor Bernien chatted briefly with Mayor Hartsfield about city affairs and Atlanta's beauty spots. The Reedsburg chief executive said he and his wife were on a "pleasure jaur.t" through the south.

Informed that the Georgia legislature had passed a law extending the terms of Atlanta's mayor and councilmen to four years, Mayor Bernien said he thought such a measure was a progressive step.

"In my little city the mayor serves two years and councilmen three years," he said. "That is not long enough, for officials do not have time to formulate definite policies and carry them through. You find yourself in one campaign after another. Longer terms, I think, result in better government.

The visiting municipal head praised the hospitality of southern cities but added that southern farming does not compare with that of his state.

"Of course, in Wisconsin we emphasize dairying," he commented. "Virtually every farmer has from 40 to 50 cows. In fact, the barns often cost more than the farm houses. It is a great cheese belt. Here in the south I've seen only a few farms that would compare with ours."

He said the county in which he lived was a virtual "hunter's paradise." There is an open season on deer, he explained, and they are killed only with bows and arrows.

the board of examiners which conducts the merit examinations will be held here Monday. Members of the board are George Googe, of Atlanta, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor; Harry Nottingham, Macon attorney, and Dr. T. Jack Lance, president of Young Harris College.

The eight employes who are at least temporarily jobless are Roy Barnett, office manager; Carl Rountree, information representative; William B. Outz, statistician; Charles J. O'Donnell, principal claims deputy; B. F. Holbrook, claims deputy; L. J. Silverton, claims deputy; Emerson Ham, claims deputy, and Fred Darnell, claims deputy.

Stenographers Dropped.

Several weeks ago about a score of stenographers were dropped from the division because they had not taken the examination required by the federal government.

"I made the appointments from the lists certified to me by Mrs. Curtis," Commissioner Huet said. "Now I have been notified that other persons have been certified with higher ratings. I acted on the information available to me at the time appointments were made."

"I was pressed to make the certifications but when they were made I informed the commissioner that others might have higher ratings," Mrs. Curtis said.

Final settlement of the dispute is expected to rest with the social security board.

WELLS IS HONORED FOR 25-YEAR SERVICE

tion; W. F. Dykes, principal of the North Fulton High school; Mrs. W. M. Dunn, representing the Fulton County Parent-Teacher Associations; Knox Walker, supervisor of high schools for Fulton county; Mrs. Cora Welch, representing the elementary school teachers; Dr. Charles Ross Adams, representing the Fulton county commissioners; Dewey Johnson, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Charles B. Gramling, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor; Miss Emily Woodward, director of the Georgia State Forums; T. W. Moore, president of the Fulton county board of education, and others were among those who lauded Wells and his services.

Mrs. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Gloer Hailey, Helen Douglas Mankin, Fulton county representative in the assembly; Ralph L. Ramsey, secretary of the Georgia Education Association, and several others were presented.

When the time came for the presentation of the silver service, Wells was completely surprised. O'Rear and his associates had taken especial precautions to prevent their plans from being known. Wells responded by thanking his friends and asserting "this is something I don't deserve," and passing it to Mrs. Wells.

The school superintendent became affiliated with the Fulton county system on January 1, 1914.

DIRECTED VERDICT ASKED IN SPY TRIAL

Trio Claims Material Sold to Russia Was Not Confidential.

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—(AP) Counsel for three persons on trial on charges of peacetime espionage today asked Federal District Judge Ralph Jenney for directed verdicts of innocence on the grounds that the government has produced no evidence proving that information which may have been sold to Russia by the trio was of a confidential nature.

Those on trial are Mikhail Gorin, former Pacific coast head for an official Soviet tourist agency; his wife, Natasha Gorin, and Hafis Salich, former United States naval intelligence officer. The Gorins are Soviet subjects. Salich is a Russion-born naturalized American.

Defense lawyers told the court that the information which the United States charges was purloined from secret files of its navy intelligence bureau is of common knowledge to laymen, having been used as the subject matter of magazine articles.

Isaac Pacht, attorney representing the Gorins, questioned the right of navy intelligence agents to be the sole judge of what matter might be considered confidential.

GANDHI LAUNCHES FAST 'UNTO DEATH'

Protests Refusal of Ruler To Grant People Government Voice.

RAJKOT, India, March 3.—(AP) Mohandas K. Gandhi began today his fifth hunger strike, determined to continue "unto death" unless the native ruler of Rajkot state meets his demands for administrative reforms. The frail, 69-year-old spiritual leader withdrew from the outside world at noon and spent the rest of the day lying on a rustic cot in his bare 14-by-16-foot room.

Only closest associates could see the bespectacled little holy man. Among them was his 75-year-old sister. She conversed earnestly with him for an hour.

Gandhi demanded that the native ruler of Rajkot, Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji, give the people of the tiny western India state "a voice in the government." Rajkot is about 300 miles northwest of Bombay.

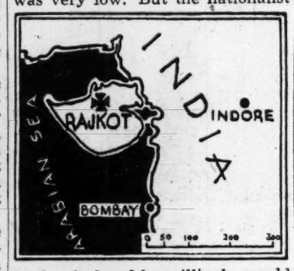

A crowd of spectators watched as Gandhi—who disdains the title "mahatma," or "saint"—prepared for his fast with a meal of wholewheat bread, tomatoes, cooked vegetables, oranges and a cup of hot goat's milk just before noon.

He had spent the morning following his usual routine of massages, ablutions and attending to his mail.

Ninety minutes after the fast began Gandhi received a letter from the Thakore. It refused to meet his demands.

Gandhi tossed it aside with the remark, "merely adding fuel to the flames."

Physicians said Gandhi's vitality was very low. But the nationalist leader declared he willingly would give his life "which has no insurance value" to get the Rajkot ruler to carry out reforms Gandhi declares he promised to make.

"No fast, however prolonged, can dissolve the body."

While Gandhi prayed for the success of his mission, new disturbances in India caused two deaths. Troops were sent to Lucknow, 700 miles from Rajkot, after Hindus and Moslems had clashed there. Troops also were ordered to stand by at Amritsar, where one person was killed and 16 injured yesterday.

GOVERNORS MEETING ON RATES CALLED

Rivers Acts To Speed Action of I. C. C. on Freight Differentials.

Definite plans for obtaining quick action by the Interstate Commerce Commission on freight rates which discriminate against the south will be formed at a meeting of the Southeastern Governors' Conference here March 21, L. W. (Chip) Robert, executive director, announced yesterday.

Optimistic and encouraged by the recommendation of ICC Commissioner William E. Lee and Examiner Michael Corcoran that rates in the south be reduced to a parity with those in the north, Robert said more progress in adjusting the discriminatory differences has been made in the last six months than ever before.

Governor Rivers, who succeeded former Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, as chairman of the conference, called the meeting for 10 o'clock March 21 at the Biltmore hotel.

He invited all the Governors of the southeastern states to attend and to bring with them the members of their public service commissions and their attorney generals.

1,219 RAIL PENSIONERS GET BENEFITS IN STATE

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) A total of $74,935 is being distributed monthly to 1,219 pensioners in Georgia, the railroad retirement board reported.

In Alabama, 1,191 pensioners receive monthly retirement payments of $66,817; in Florida, 1,318 pensioners receive $92,792.

The board reported yesterday more than $7,800,000 is distributed to 125,103 annuitants and pensioners each month throughout the nation.

Whistle While You Work!
Legislators 'Relax' in Song

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 6.—(AP)—Debate in the Oklahoma house of representatives was fiery; the atmosphere tense.

Suddenly Representative Wallace G. Hughes, speaker pro tem, reared back and bellowed the first verse of a popular ditty.

House members gaped in amazement.

"Join in," Hughes urged.

After a five-minute singing bee Hughes said:

"Now we will proceed with business. I just thought you ought to relax a little."

ALABAMANS DEFEAT DIXON COURT BILL

Fight on Tax Boards Shapes Up; S. C. Vote on Gas Levy Balked.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 3.—(AP)—An administration-sponsored bill proposing retirement of aged judges was defeated in the Alabama house today as foes of Governor Frank M. Dixon's proposal to establish county tax equalization boards claimed a majority and revealed plans to seek a showdown Tuesday.

Both houses adjourned today to reconvene Tuesday.

The "tax equalization" bill has been attacked as "a tax-raising scheme" and defended by the Governor as "an honest attempt to equalize property assessments" and a measure which "only the tax-dodger need fear." It was passed by the senate, 19 to 14, after hot debate.

Administrationists admitted Dixon faced his strongest test of the 1939 session in the equalization plan, and some said "off-the-record" they planned to forestall a vote until Thursday if possible to strengthen their lines.

S. C. SOLON PREVENTS VOTE ON GAS TAX BILL

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 3.—(AP)—Senator P. H. McEachin, of Florence, held the senate floor for one hour today in opposition to a bill to change the method of distribution of the counties' one-cent share of the gasoline tax and once more prevented action on the measure.

McEachin resumed where he left off Wednesday, when he first took the floor after unsuccessful attempts to kill the bill introduced by Warren, of Hampton, and Thomas, of Allendale, and which would allocate the gasoline tax to the counties on a basis of area, population, motor vehicle registration and county road mileage.

MARIAN ANDERSON PERMITTED TO SING

Board Reverses Self on Capital Auditorium.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) The board of education reversed itself today and voted to permit Marian Anderson, negro contralto, to sing in the Central High school auditorium on Easter Sunday.

Before the board's first decision to bar the singer from use of the auditorium, the Daughters of the American Revolution denied her use of their Constitution hall.

Later, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told a press conference that she had resigned from a nation-wide organization in a disagreement over policy, but refused to confirm or deny that the organization was the D. A. R.

Berg Plays Jameson In East Coast Finals

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 3. (AP)—Betty Jameson, long-driving golfer from San Antonio, Texas, and Patty Berg, national women's champion, will clash tomorrow in the Florida east coast golf tournament finals.

Miss Jameson eased into the last round today with a 3-and-2 win over Mrs. William Hockenjos, of Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

Patty blasted Laddie Irwin, of Montclair, N. J., from the running, 6 and 4, to continue her four-year quest for the Kenan trophy.

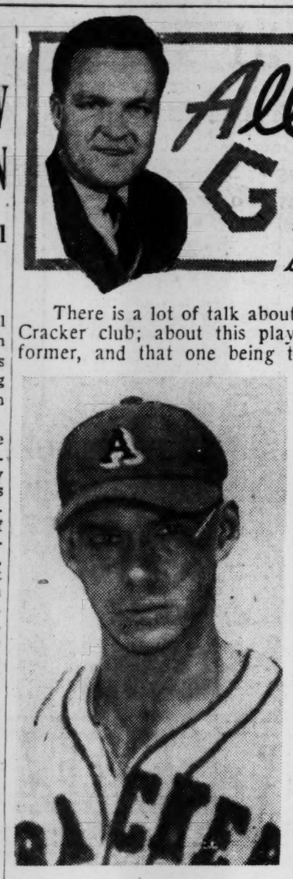

Fans To Be Barred From Game Tonight

PITTSBURGH, March 3.—(AP) There won't be any cheering, unless it's from the substitutes, at the basketball game tomorrow night between the Carnegie Tech and Penn State teams because there won't be any spectators.

Fans will be barred from the Eastern Intercollegiate conference tilt as the result of an outbreak of influenza on the Tech campus, Student Health Director W. L. Marks announced today.

Only the players, scorers, floor officials and reporters will be admitted. Some 100 cases of 'flu have been reported among Tech students.

RUSS PETERS.

There is a lot of talk about who'll be this, and that, on the Cracker club; about this player being a most valuable performer, and that one being the people's favorite, and so it seems apropos to enter the discussions and make a personal nomination.

This player isn't being given much of a tumble, although he was a most valued performer last season. He didn't hit sensationally, I'll grant, but he fielded almost faultless and was a right handy gent to have around.

I refer to Russ Peters, the former Washington and Lee swinger, who will play shortstop for the Crackers this summer.

Peters' timing on ground balls is such that many sensational plays made by him are overlooked because he makes them seem easy. He has a fine arm and virtually all of last season had no capable running mate at second.

Potentially, Peters is a great double-play man. His worth along this line may show up this summer, provided the Crackers bob up with a real second baseman out of the list that includes Alf Anderson, Charlie Brewster and, perhaps, Al Rubeling.

In addition to his defensive ability, Peters also has proven a steadying influence. He is a smart ball player. Manager Paul Richards doubtless will rely on him steadying the youngsters around him.

Many times last year Richards asked Peters' advice in certain situations and found that often the advice was good. So he accepted it.

Russ Peters has been a good hitter along the way. And a little known fact is that he never wore glasses before coming to Atlanta. Glasses don't seem to bother his fielding but apparently have had some effect on his batting.

If this handicap is overcome by Russ Peters in spring training, and the skilled shortstop develops into a consistent hitter, you won't have to look farther than Atlanta to find the best all-round shortstop in the Southern league.

PEBS CLAIM BEST INNERWORKS.

The Little Rock Pebbles already are claiming the best infield before spring training opens. The Pebble combine includes Art Mahan, first base; Leroy Schalk, second base; Bernie Snyder, shortstop, and Babe Benning, the old glass eater, third base.

It is very likely that Little Rock has the best second baseman in Schalk, who formed a great keystone combination at Newark with Nolen Richardson. Schalk is a great second baseman. He was the key man of Little Rock last season. When Schalk was injured, Little Rock went down.

Doc Prothro admitted last year that Schalk made Snyder. Without the former Bear in the lineup, Snyder was a mediocre shortstop.

Little Rock may have the best infield on paper. But surely the Crackers have at least half of the best infield right now, with Jack Bolling on first and Russ Peters at short.

The rest of the infield must develop. Paul Richards considers Rubeling an excellent third baseman and thinks Anderson will fill the bill at second satisfactorily. But outside of first and short, the infield remains unsettled.

DIMAGGIO SIGNS YANK CONTRACT BELIEVED $27,000

Joe Agrees Early, Leaving Only Rolfe, Gordon, Crosetti Out.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy, of the New York Yankees, today announced Joe DiMaggio had signed his 1939 contract. McCarthy made his announcement after a telephone conversation with Ed Barrow in New York. DiMaggio is due to report here on Monday along with other members of the second squad and presumably is en route to camp now.

JOE DI MAGGIO

While no figures were announced, it is believed DiMaggio signed for $27,000, a $2,000 increase over his 1938 salary. His signing leaves only Red Rolfe, Joe Gordon and Frankie Crosetti as holdouts.

This is the earliest date that DiMaggio has signed his contract since joining the Yankees in 1936. He held out until March 20 in 1937 and didn't put his name on the dotted line until April 25 last year.

Neither has the slugging outfielder ever opened the season with the Yankees. His first year up, a foot injury kept him out of the lineup until May 3 and in 1937 he underwent a tonsilectomy, which kept him idle until May 1. Last year he swung into action April 30, five days after signing his contract.

Mel Almada Signs Contract With Browns.

ST. LOUIS, March 3.—(AP)—Signing of Outfielder Mel Almada was announced today by the St. Louis Browns' office, leaving eight players still out of the fold. They are Pitchers Buck Newsom, Fred Johnson and Howard Mills, Catcher Billy Sullivan and Infielders Red Kress, Don Heffner, Roy Hughes and Sig Gryska.

SNEAD DEFEATS PICARD ON 25TH

Both Shoot 69's for First 18 in St. Petersburg Golf Finals.

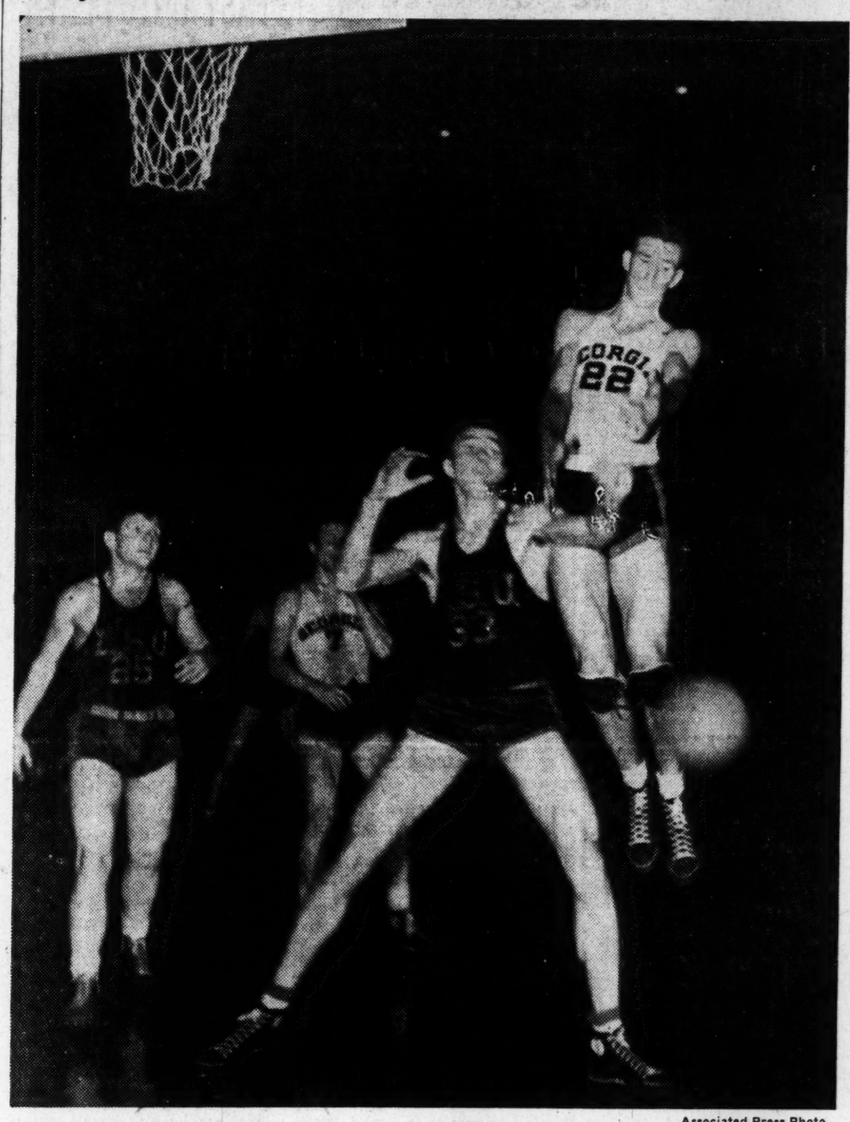

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Sammy Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., won the St. Petersburg open golf championship here today, defeating Henry Pickard, Hershey, Pa., in a 25-hole playoff.

Snead and Picard shot 69's, three under par, for the first 18 holes after tying at 207, nine under par, for the 54 holes of the tournament. Snead won the playoff at the twenty-fifth hole by sinking a four-foot putt for a birdie two.

Snead's hard-won victory gave him top money of $700 and his first tournament victory of many weeks, although he was the leading money winner of 1938.

Although Picard missed out on this third straight tournament triumph, second place money of $450 boosted to $3,150 his winnings for the past two weeks. He captured top prize of $2,000 in the $10,000 Crestcent City open at New Orleans two weeks ago and his first at Thomasville last week brought him another $700.

Lanier and Richmond Gain G. I. A. A. Finals

Poets Swamp Tech High, 40 to 13; Augusta Team Beats Savannah, 45 to 41.

By ROY WHITE.

Lanier High, defending champions from Macon, and Richmond Academy, of Augusta, will battle tonight at 9 o'clock on the Henry Grady court for Georgia's high school basketball championship.

A preliminary game for third place between Tech High and Savannah High will be played at 8 o'clock.

Both finalists won comparatively easy victories in Friday night's semi-finals, Lanier defeating an old enemy, Tech High, 40 to 13, and Richmond eliminating Savannah High, 45 to 41.

GOOD GUARDING.

Richmond Academy, with the best guarding team ever seen on a local court and a lightning fast offense, led Savannah High all the way and was never in danger, though the final score shows only a four-point difference.

The Augusta team was ahead 20 to 10 at the quarter, 30-19 at the half, and 39-30 going into the final 10 minutes of play.

Parrish, a flashy forward with 17 points, led Richmond's attack and was closely followed by Logan, a hard-running guard, who scored five field goals and two fouls.

Richmond's ability to sink foul shots was a feature of the game. Only two free throws were missed as seven one-pointers were chalked up.

J. Bergman, one-half of the Bergman brother combination which gave Savannah a pair of two-point victories, was the shining light in Savannah's defeat. He scored nine field goals and a foul to lead the night's scoring.

A badly crippled Tech High team, which upset G. M. A. in a low-scoring contest Thursday night, was no match for the rugged Lanier champions.

POUNDS OUT.

Tech High lost the services of Jack Pounds, leading scorer of the city prep league, who is confined to his home with an attack of mumps. He got up from a sick bed to play against G. M. A., but was ordered back to bed by physicians Friday morning.

Tech High started strong against Lanier and held the ball some seven minutes before the Poets broke through, never to be threatened or in danger again.

WILDCATS DOWN L. S. U. '5'; VANDY HALTED BY VOLS

Commodores Stopped, 39-36; Tigers Succumb to 'Cat Offense, 53-34.

By KENNETH GREGORY.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 3.—(AP)—Those ancient athletic foes, Tennessee's Volunteers and Kentucky's Wildcats, battled their way tonight into the finals of the 1939 Southeastern conference basketball championship tournament before some 3,000 spectators.

The two teams, former champions of the conference and finalists twice before, will clash for the crown Saturday night, the game starting at 8 p. m., central standard time.

In advancing to the finals over some of the stiffest opposition encountered in the past five tournaments, Tennessee and Kentucky upheld advance predictions, both having been seeded by the committee before play started.

EARLY LEADS.

The Volunteers, champions in 1936, overcame Vanderbilt's Commodores in a fierce struggle, 39 to 36, and Kentucky coasted to a comparatively easy 53-to-34 triumph over Louisiana State's Tigers. The Wildcats jumped into an early lead and held command all the way. Tennessee gained the advantage over Vanderbilt after a minute and was never headed, but the Vols had to ward off a last-minute rally by the Commodores.

The Kentucky-Tennessee championship combat will present two closely matched clubs. Both quintets were easily the class of the tournament, although the subdued Vanderbilt team, which provided the early round fireworks, did itself nobly and gave Tennessee its toughest competition.

SCORES 10 POINTS.

Center Walker Thompson, who played only part of the second half and scored 10 points, and Forward Keith Farnsley paced the Kentucky five to victory, and the close guarding of the Wildcats on defense broke up play after play for Louisiana State. Paul Brotherton, Louisiana State, paced his team offensively with 12 points.

The Tennessee-Vanderbilt duel, as expected, was a thriller. The Vols at one stage of the first half held a 20-to-10 command, but the Commodore's ace forward, Pinky Lipscomb, went into the fray and sparked a rally that barely fell short.

City Basketball

NEW Y. M. C. A. CHAMPIONSHIP.

Three new league champions were crowned at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night when the final play-offs between first and second-half winners of the Y. leagues were held.

Gold Shield won the title in the City league, recognized as the strongest league in the city, by defeating the Rybert Printing Co., winners of the first half, 29 to 24. Everybody on the Shield team scored often and McCabe and Sproule led all with 13 and 12 points respectively. O'Callahan dropped in 13 for Rybert, but effective guarding kept down their chances.

The best game of the evening was the 34-to-32 victory of Dental College over Four Square. This game was tight from start to finish, and only in the last 10 seconds did the Dentists score the winning points. Romanelli and Westbrook led the scoring for the winners with 15 and 8 points. Brown and Johnson played fine games for the Squares.

Y. Triangles lost to the Aces 31 to 11 and the Aces became champs of the Atlanta league. The game was even for the first half, but the Aces easily triumphed in the last stanza.

Jock Sutherland To Leave Pitt?

Rumors Say Gridiron Veteran To Coach at Mississippi State.

PITTSBURGH, March 3.—(AP)—Once-powerful Pitt has lost another member of its coaching staff and the question heard 'round the campus today was: "Who's next?"

Alex Fox, one of the smallest and one of the best of many good guards who played football at Pitt, is the fourth member of Coach John Bain Sutherland's teaching staff to leave the university since the close of the 1938 campaign.

Rumors immediately got into the wind that the next to leave might be Sutherland himself, but there was no one who professed to know anything definite about the situation. Sutherland repeatedly denied similar reports, but expressed discouragement over next season's prospects.

The Sun-Telegraph said there was an unconfirmed report that Sutherland "received and is considering an offer to take over the head coaching post at Mississippi State College." To which Sutherland replied: "There's hardly anything to that."

Whatever happens, any prospect that existed at Pitt for a traditionally strong eleven next season seemed to be dimming.

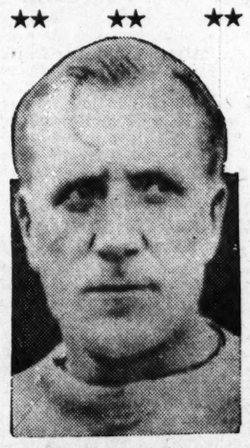

Fox was a good right arm to Sutherland; helped him build those powerful lines. He quit to go sell cement.

Before him, End Coach Eddie Schultz departed; then Josh Williams, backfield mentor, and Mike Milligan, freshman coach, both of whom took positions with the University of Florida.

So far Sutherland has failed to set a definite date for the opening of spring practice. Some sources said that might be the lack of eligible players, although a check-up disclosed 47 gridders on the eligible list.

More than a score of prospects are ineligible because of classroom difficulties. Among them are five gridiron 'varsity holdovers. Larry Peace, of Bradford, the best fullback prospect, and Quarterback Billy Goldberg, sophomore brother of the famed mad Marshall Goldberg, both are ineligible for spring practice.

Who will fill the assistant coaching vacancies remains to be decided. Only Frank Souchak, one-time star Pitt end—the successor of Schultz—has been appointed. Don Hensley, center coach; Mike Nicksic, backfield coach, and John Michelosen, coach of the quarterbacks, remain from last fall's staff.

Among those reported considered for the vacancies are Ted Daily, former assistant at Boston College; George Shotwell, great Pitt center, now with an Orange (N. J.) high school; Ken Ormiston, an assistant at Miami University; Charley Hartwig, now coaching at Moundsville (W. Va.) High school; Harvey Rooker, coach at Lancaster (Pa.) High, and Luby De Mielo, former coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Other names mentioned are ex-Pitt Fullbacks Marshall Goldberg, Frank Patrick and Izzy Weinstock.

Stagehand Tops 9 Widener Entries; 18 Run at Santa Anita

ADMIRAL IS OUT OF $50,000 EVENT; 25,000 TO ATTEND

Entry of Sir Damcon and Pasteurized, Bull Lea Dangerous.

By GAYLE TALBOT.

MIAMI, Fla., March 3.—(AP)—Nine thoroughbreds, headed by Colonel Maxwell Howard's great Stagehand, were named today to go to the post in the fourth running of the $50,000 Widener challenge cup, mile and a quarter classic climaxing the Hialeah Park season tomorrow.

A crowd of 25,000 is expected to throng the beautiful plant, and a good part of them will have their money riding on Stagehand, long-striding son of Sickle. Stagehand won both the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap and the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby last year.

It would have been different if War Admiral hadn't developed a temperature and been withdrawn. He and Stagehand would have reached the post about equal favorites. With the stout son of Man o' War moping in his stall, Stagehand is figured to be a little too powerful in the stretch for Bull Lea, Pasteurized and Sir Damion, the trio counted upon to give him the real opposition.

Marshall Field's Sir Damion, with the sensational Don Meade in the saddle, and Mrs. W. Plunket Stewart's Pasteurized, ridden by the talented Eddie Arcaro, are running as an entry, and a dangerous one. They will be second favorites in the mutuel betting, with Calumet Farm's Bull Lea a logical third.

The other five runners, Teddy Weed, Mythical King, Francesco, Warlaine and Xavier, scarcely are in Stagehand's class at such a long distance, and it is considered probable that Xavier will be withdrawn unless it rains hard before post time at 4:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) But a continuation of today's beautiful weather was forecast.

There is no way to get out of picking Stagehand off his one performance this season. In the McLennan Memorial at a mile and an eighth a fortnight ago he came from far back to pass the pacesetting Bull Lea almost at the wire and win in time that tied the track record. He was increasing his advantage at every bound at the finish.

BOBBY JONES LOSES INCOME TAX APPEAL

U. S. Court Holds Diverted Income Was Taxable by U. S.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—(AP) The United States fifth circuit court of appeals today turned down the appeal of Robert Tyre (Bobby) Jones Jr., of Atlanta, Ga., former amateur golf champion, to recover $51,815.17 in income taxes and interest paid on incomes he claimed never to have received.

Today's decision upheld a ruling by the middle district of Georgia court. The government contended that while under contract to a moving picture company, Jones sold his services to his father, received $1,000 annually from his parent, and that the golfer's film income was diverted through his father into trust funds for Bobby Jones' three minor children.

The opinion of the appeals court, written by Judge Rufus Foster, said in part:

"The appellant could have set up the trust fund in favor of the children without the intervention of his father. The conclusion is inescapable that he used his father simply as a conduit in an attempt to reduce or avoid taxes that would be otherwise assessable against compensation derived from his own personal services."

Payment for Bobby Jones' film appearances, according to the trial record, was made directly to his father by the studios and were deposited in the Trust Company of Georgia in Atlanta. Jones denied that he had knowledge at that time of any trust fund set up by his father for the golfer's children.

On his 1931 account Jones asked judgment for $25,942.14 and interest at 6 per cent from December 14, 1934, and on his 1933 account a principal of $25,873.03 and interest from February 3, 1936, according to his petition.

S. E. C. TOURNEY HIGHLIGHTS

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 3.. Highlights and sidelights on the Southeastern conference basketball tournament:

Vanderbilt's 73 points against Mississippi State in the first game of the tournament are the most ever scored in the six-year history of the meet . . . Just 46 of them came in the last half . . . Better than a field goal a minute . . . Fast work, boys.

Shaven-headed Pinky Lipscomb, Vandy's high-scoring sophomore, is all that has been said about him. He got 14 points against Miss. State . . . And 12 against Alabama.

Someone said Tulane's Buddy Jumonville has only about one million smackers in his own name.

Football players making their appearance as basketball stars in the tournament include Ford and Little, of Vandy . . . McMahan, of Miss. State . . . Estes and Hudson, of Alabama . . . Anderson and Smith, of Tech . . . McCaskill, of Georgia . . . Bradley, of Ole Miss. Morgan, of Auburn . . . Brunner and Bodney, of Tulane . . . Bozeman, of L. S. U. . . . Luttrell and Duncan, of Tennessee.

Johnny Huff, of Auburn, started the second game of his life when the Tigers played Tulane Thursday morning . . . And he played the whole game . . . And turned in an excellent defensive performance. Huff opened against Sewanee way back in January . . . Reason for his starting was his excellent play against Tech last Monday . . . Ralph Jordan, Auburn coach, says Huff will continue to go as long as he can . . . He replaced co-Captain Tommie Edwards.

Sewanee surprised the large crowd at the afternoon games by their spirited play against L. S. U. At one time the Tigers, losers of 13 straight conference games, were leading L. S. U. 4 to 0. They held the lead four times during the first half.

Talk is going around here that Tech and Georgia will appear on a double-header program in Atlanta in the next couple of years. The Bulldogs will play Tennessee and the Jackets will meet Alabama on the same program, say the rumors.

The crowd here is strictly an underdog crowd . . . It pulled for Sewanee against L. S. U. and then Vanderbilt against Alabama . . . Another star of the Vanderbilt team is Joe Little, who gave Alabama fits with his long shots.

ABOUT JOHN RUCKER.

Over in Birmingham, Johnny Roberts, in an interview with Zipp Newman, warns Southern league third basemen about John Rucker, whom he has seen a lot.

Roberts cautions third basemen to play in close when the Crabapple Cannonball is at bat. "Rucker will drive slow-fielding third basemen to distraction," he said, adding, "I guarantee he'll top more balls into hits than any other player in the league."

The pressure admittedly is being put on young John Rucker, but it has come about in a perfectly natural way. He is a sensational newcomer to the game and has had a lot of publicity.

I don't think this will affect John's play in the least. The player hasn't been born who could do something every time he came to bat.

Atlanta fans certainly won't expect him to show the better attributes of a Cobb and a Speaker in his first full season in the Southern league.

SO RED THE ROSE?

Jordan (Red and Black) Bottom, who slaps a mean tomtom 12 months out of every year for all Georgia athletics, was around yesterday using his chin for a dustpan. So low in spirits was Jordan that he had to reach up to touch bottom.

"Oh-h-h-h," Bottom moaned, clutching a throbbing head, "Elmer Lampe's light went out at Knoxville, you might say. But wait, boys, another season will be coming up before very long. Just wait until next season."

Bottom already has started planning for a championship five in 1940. Meanwhile, he thinks J. V. Sikes' baseball team will be the class of the collegiate ranks.

Tomorrow, the skies will all be blue again, and prospects for next football season will be rosier than in many seasons. That happens to be Mr. Bottom's philosophy. He is a perpetual optimist, especially the day after the dope has been upset.

RUSSELL DOWNS ATHENS, 40 TO 37; N. FULTON LOSES

Wildcats Play Marietta, Decatur Meets Gainesville Tonight.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The Russell Wildcat clawed its way into the semifinals of the N. G. I. C. tourney here last night. Playing as a champion should, the title defenders cracked a very tough nut in downing a fighting club from Athens High, 40-37.

Thanks to Jack Davis, who set a blistering pace with his 23 points to assume the tourney scoring lead, the East Pointers led from start to finish, but always by only a few points, and then had to stave off a determined last-half assault by the fine Athenian club.

McCoy and Upchurch gave Davis some able assistance in the scoring department for Russell. Top honors for Athens must go to Cobb, lanky center, who played a whale of a defensive game, and looped 14 scores hoopward. Bryant and Griffith also gave the Russell defense the jitters with their accurate long-range firing. Griffith rang up 10 and Bryant 8 counters.

The Decatur-North Fulton fracas shared the nocturnal spotlight with the feature melee. Bell, Decatur satellite, scintillated all over the place to spark his mates to a one-point, 28-27 triumph over the highly regarded Northside crew.

Bell's 15 scores were high for the contest. Connell did the lion's share of scoring for North Fulton. His total was 14. Marshall, star guard of the Fultons, fouled out in the opening quarter.

His demise from the fray handicapped the Bulldogs no little. The North Fulton's possessed a four-point margin at half time, and kept the lead until near the end, when Bell's dead eye Dick shooting sank Northside hopes.

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Russell quint tackles the Marietta team, surprise package of the tourney, and at 9 o'clock Decatur locks horns with Gainesville, upset victor over Newnan.

Both afternoon quarter - final struggles were beautifully contested affairs, in which the issues were in doubt until the final whistle. Gainesville, tourney dark horse, after trailing, 18-11, at the half-way mark, pulled a Frank Meriwell finish to emerge victor over the favored Newnan quint by a 28-26 count. Newnan previously had held the Russell Wildcats, defending champs, to a one-point victory in a league tussle. The Marietta Blue Devils, for the second time in two days, pulled a game out of the fire by fine last-period play. It took the Blue Devils an overtime period to down Fulton's Cardinals, 30-29.

Chandler, Morrison and Parnell struck a fast second-half pace for Gainesville to overtake the leading Newnans, who were paced by J. Sprayberry and Edgeworth, with nine markers apiece. Chandler sank the winning goal with only seconds to play.

The Marietta-Fulton fray was a ding-dong hammer - and - tongs affair all the way. It was Fields, elongated Fulton center, who kept the Cardinals in the game with his high score of 14 points. Caldwell and Lay sparked Marietta's attack, the former sinking the game-winning foul shot after the whistle had ended the overtime period.

FRANCO TO RELEASE AMERICAN TROOPS

Ambassador Bowers Arranges Exchange of 87 Prisoners for Italians.

ST. JEAN-DE-LUZ, France, March 3.—(AP)—The United States asbassador to Spain, Claude G. Bowers, announced today he had arranged for an exchange of 87 American prisoners held in Nationalist Spain for an equal number of Italian prisoners now in the Madrid governmeit's zone.

Bowers said the International Red Cross would superintend the actual exchange. The agreement provides the prisoners shall be returned to their own countries.

Most of the Americans were captured last spring while fighting as members of the Madrid regime's international brigade's during the Nationalist drive eastward to the Mediterrean and have been held in the Nationalist concentration camp at San Pedro de Cardena.

The most publicized of the American prisoners held in Spain, the aviator, Harold Dahl, was not among those to be exchanged. Dahl, whose death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Generalissimo Franco in October, 1937, is an "honor prisoner" in the military hospital at Salamanca.

Names of 78 of the 87 were available as they appear on the passports. Among them were:

New York City—Elias Balaguichik, Ramon Vasquez Garcia, Michael Goodwin, Will Graver, Frank Grodzki, John Higgins, Oto Lemke, Sol Lerner, Max Parker, Sidney Rosenblatt, Maurice Tobman, Hyman David Wallach, and Albert Ziegler.

Tampa, Fla—Joaquin Calvet Alvrez, Avelino Diaz Arranz, Alfonso Fernandez Fernandez, Pardo Iglesias, and Manuel Bode Calleja.

Joseph Grigas, Worcester, Mass.; Edward Johnson, Lynchburg, Va.; Charles Keith, Rutland, Vt.; John M. Logan, Boston, Mass.; Henry Mequier, Mobile, Ala.; Claude Pringle, Halifax county, Virginia.

SEABISCUIT OUT, EXPERTS EXPECT WIDE-OPEN RACE

However, Kayak II Will Be Heavily Backed in $100,000 Event.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

ARCADIA, Cal., March 3.—(UP)—Racing's "Golden Gallop," the Santa Anita handicap, will be run through golden sunshine.

This was assured today when, shortly after 18 crack thoroughbreds were named to contest for the $100,000 added prize money, the weatherman said there was no likelihood of rain and that a track as fast as the field would be ready for the fifth renewal of the world's richest race.

If he's right, then the biggest crowd to watch the event which began when Azucar won the inaugural in 1935, will be in the spacious stands of the Los Angeles Turf Club when the horses go to the post at 4:12 p. m. (P. S. T.) tomorrow. Officials anticipate that upwards of 70,000 customers, or 7,000 more than the record crowd of last year, will be in attendance.

BISCUIT LAME.

With mighty Seabiscuit lame in his barn, the race is wide open, with no fewer than 10 of the field given sound chances to come home in front.

And the other eight entrants were not without support, although there was a strong feeling that Amor Brujo, Frexo and Olimpo would not be in the parade to the post unless unexpected rain muddies the track. These three are mediocre on a fast track, but would become sound contenders in sloppy going.

Even though Seabiscuit is out, the C. S. Howard stable probably will have the favorite in Kayak II, a four-year-old South American colt by Congreve-Mosquita, Kayak II will run as an entry with Sorteado, another Argentine-bred colt, who made a clean sweep of the rich stakes in the Pampas country last year.

ENTRY AT 4-1.

This entry was held at 4 to 1 today and probably will be as short as 5-2 at post time, largely because of the smashing race run by Kayak II in winning the San Carlos handicap two weeks ago. Carrying 110 pounds, the same weight he will pack tomorrow, the hard-hitting South American blazed a mile and a sixteenth in 1:42.5 for a new track record. He was running tremendously at the finish and gave every indication that a mile and a quarter will not be too much for him.

In that race Kayak ran into the ground three of the horses who will be in there against him tomorrow. These were Bert Baroni's Specify, Major Austin Taylor's Whichcee, and Lou B. Mayer's Main Man. Specify was third in the betting today at 6 to 1 and Whichee fourth at 7 to 1. All three will give weight to him in the big race.

Here Are Entries For $100,000 Race.

Newest Japanese Princess Is Paid Visit by Hirohita

TOKYO, March 3.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito today paid his first call on his newest daughter, born to Empress Nagako yesterday on the eve of one of Japan's most important fete days, the Girls' Festival. March 3 is sometimes called the Dolls' Festival, the special holiday of little girls.

Japanese considered the coincidence auspicious for the infant princess who, according to tradition, will be named by her father when she is seven days old.

The imperial household minister announced the baby weighed 7 pounds 11 1-2 ounces at birth.

Although she was the Emperor's seventh child, only six are living. The second, Princess Nisa, died in 1928 before she was a year old.

The Emperor's fifth and sixth children are boys.

S. E. C. Coaches Seek Uniform Officiating

Cage Mentors Meet in Knoxville; Future Seeded Teams Will Not Be Given Byes.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 3.—(AP)—Southeastern conference basketball coaches took initial steps today to bring about uniform officiating in future league games and tournaments.

Eleven of the 13 members here attending the conference cage tournament met and discussed the officiating situation, but Coach Roy Mundorff, of Georgia Tech, spokesman for the group, said only a date for a future meeting was agreed on.

"We decided to meet again in Atlanta next December 17 at which time an officials' association probably will be organized," Mundorff said. "Each coach will present the names of 10 officials to the meeting, and it is expected that a list of approved officials will be selected from the group."

CONTROVERSIAL POINT.

Officiating long has been a controversial point in the conference. Some coaches, among them Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, prefer the open type game with a liberal interpretation of the rules. Others contend that as long as the rules are in the book they should be called strictly.

In addition, the coaches adopted a leather seamless ball as the official ball to be used in conference games and tournaments. The home team in future games will wear white uniforms while the visiting quintet will be garbed in its school colors.

COACHES' VOTE.

In future tournaments, Mundorff said, it was agreed that the four seeded teams will be selected by a vote of the coaches, but they will not be awarded automatic byes as was the case this year.

"The seeded teams will be placed two each to a bracket, but the pairings will be determined by the draw with each team having an equal chance of receiving a first-round bye," Mundorff explained.

Mundorff was elected secretary of the group at the meeting over which Coach Johnny Mauer, of Tennessee, presided.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(UP)—Frank Bowden, of New York, a perennial runner-up, moved into the finals of the national men's indoor singles tennis championships today and tomorrow will meet top-seeded Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Ore., in the finals.

In the women's singles, Pauline Betz, 19-year-old Los Angeles blonde, defeated top-seeded Norma Taubele, of New York, former titleholder, 6-1, 6-3. Helen Bernhard, of New York, national girls' champion, also moved into the final. She defeated Millicent Hirsh, also of New York, seeded No. 3, 6-0, 7-5.

Miss Betz will meet Miss Bernhard in the final tomorrow for the title won last year by Virginia Hollinger, of Dayton, Ohio.

FAVORITE IS HURT BY HORSE, HOG IN FIELD CONTEST

Amazon's Village Girl Is Withdrawn at Grand Junction.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., March 3.—(UP)—Amazon's Village Girl—pointer bitch that had been favored strongly to win the 44th national championship field trials—was withdrawn because of injuries suffered when she was kicked by a horse and attacked by a hog today.

Village Girl's bracemate, Norias Aerotype, pointer, owned by H. C. Teagle, New York, failed miserably, being unable to smell a bird. The two ran in the afternoon heat. The injured dog belongs to H. E. McGonigul, Kokomo, Ind.

In the morning three-hour heat, two pointers eliminated themselves by giving poor performances. Dr. Rahn, owned by George R. Feltman, Union City, Ind., found one covey and two singles, made two unproductive points and was out of judgment for 58 minutes. King Genius, from the C. R. Dawley kennels, Charleston, W. Va., found a covey and a single, but was out of judgment for an hour.

NAVAL BASE SITES IN GEORGIA STUDIED

House Committee, Headed by Vinson, Inspects Coastal Properties.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 3.—Members of the house naval affairs committee, headed by Congressman Carl Vinson, chairman, arrived here late today from Brunswick, prepared to continue tomorrow their inspection of proposed sites for a large naval air base to be established in the southeast.

The inspecting group, which included several naval experts, went to Brunswick this morning from Fernandina, Fla., after completing similar inspections there. Sites at Miami and Jacksonville had been studied previously.

Boarding a special steamer at Brunswick, the delegation went first to Blythe island, now owned by the government, and then to Crispen island, near by. The tour also included Brunswick point, which has been recommended by the Brunswick Board of Trade as the most desirable air base site on the Georgia coast.

Mayor Gamble and a part of other prominent Savannahians escorted the group from Brunswick and personally conducted a trip to the principal Savannah-sponsored site—the million-dollar General Oglethorpe hotel property on Wilmington island. The site also includes between 700 and 800 additional acres of high land on the broad Wilmington river, giving a direct outlet to the Atlantic ocean.

Members of the inspection party were guests of the city at a dinner tonight.

Officers Snap To Salute as President Cruises In

Naval officers are shown on the dock in Charleston, S. C., as they saluted President Roosevelt on his arrival yesterday aboard the Cruiser Houston after viewing naval war maneuvers in the Caribbean sea. The President said that the fleet games proved highly satisfactory and that no deficiences were disclosed that would warrant changes in his naval construction program.

F. D. R. TO CONFER WITH LABOR BODY

Green had called on congress to abolish the present National Labor Relations Board, which he charged is "prejudiced" in favor of the CIO, and replace it with a new five-member "federal labor board."

Green warned that not even peace with the CIO will check the AFL's drive to amend the Wagner act.

He said that his organization still regards the labor relations statute as "the magna charta of labor," but he asserted that "prompt enactment of the amendments is vitally necessary to safeguard the act from being entirely destroyed by the present NLRB."

"Nothing will be permitted to stand in the way of this vital objective," he declared.

Tobin Is Sought.

Miss Perkins also disclosed at her press conference that she is seeking to persuade Daniel J. Tobin, Teamsters' Union president and foremost peace advocate within the AFL, to reconsider his refusal to serve on the federation's negotiating committee.

She said that Tobin was "trusted by everyone on both sides" and that his participation would be of material aid since his union, largest within the AFL, is caught "in the middle" by the struggle between the two groups.

Tobin, whose peace efforts were noted by President Roosevelt in his letters to Green and Lewis, declined appointment to the AFL committee Tuesday. He said that press of work within his own union would prevent his serving.

SALES TAX BILL FACES HURDLES

in the 3 per cent general sales tax levy would exempt certain basic food essentials, such as flour, meat, lard, bread, corn meal, coffee, sugar, salt, molasses, ice, unprocessed forest products, medicines compounded from prescriptions or sold by physicians, bagging and ties, cotton involved in any sale, seed for planting and fertilizer sold direct to the farmers.

Representative Wilmer Lanier, of Richmond, proposed the exemptions and the move was carried, 64 to 55, only after several hours of sharp debate. Lanier urged his amendment with the assertion that "if you tax these necessities you'll not be merely taking the levy out of the pockets of the poor, you'll be taking it out of their stomachs."

Representative W. H. Key, chairman of the house appropriations committee and leader in the fight against the amendment, countered that the tax would "not hurt anyone," that wage earners, even the poor, could afford to pay to support state services which benefit the unfortunate and the farmers would not have to pay it because they grow most of these items themselves.

Another change struck out the exemption of newspapers and the house was in the midst of arguments for still further exemptions when the week-end recess was taken.

Bankrupt Bill.

Representative H. B. Edwards, of Lowndes, took the floor to charge the sales tax "is a bankrupt bill on the people of Georgia," and other legislators rose to discuss state expenditures and economics.

Representative E. J. Ford, of Worth county, told the house more than $3,000,000, or 8 per cent of the total revenue of the state, went to 670 state officials and employes in salaries and travel expenses last year.

He said he had taken the figures from the state auditor's report and that they represented only a small part of more than 7,000 persons on the state pay rolls.

"People of Georgia will not stand for additional taxes until we stop the gross extravagance and spendthrift policies now being followed," he said. "We can't pay our teachers and our old-age pensioners under present conditions. We can't raise enough money to pay out if we keep on with this wasteful policy and refuse to practice a little economy.

"Economy is my ticket and it's the ticket of 90 per cent of the common people of this state. I don't see how any member of the general assembly can vote for high-yield taxes and then go back home and tell his folks 'We've killed the bear and saved the state.'"

"New Deal is Ruin."

Edwards compared the New Deal with Rivers' "Little New Deal" in Georgia. He said "as closely aligned as twin brothers are the New Deal and taxes. Is is the New Deal in Georgia just like it's the New Deal in Washington. The New Deal is ruin, and new taxes is ruin."

He charged the sales tax is the most "evil and iniquitous tax you can levy because it goes into everybody's pockets. This sales tax bill is Sales Tax Eddie Rivers' bill from A to Z. It's a dream that he's had over the years which he is urging now because he can't run for governor any more for two years."

Representative Roughton, of Washington, however, argued against Lanier's exemptions, asserting that his position was that it was better to force people of even very limited means to pay something rather than to exempt them from paying and jeopardize their receiving any income at all.

"I'm for economy," he asserted, but added he had finally concluded that the state would have to have more taxes to take care of essential state services and that the sales tax seemed the way to get it.

With the amendments of today, tax experts reduced their estimates of possible revenue from a range of $11,000,000 to $18,000,000 to between $8,500,000 and $9,000,000.

In this connection, Speaker Harris said the sales tax, as amended, would raise approximately $8,000,000 per year, and the repeal of income tax exemptions for federal tax payments approved yesterday, would add about $1,000,000 more.

Shortage Left.

"If both of these are enacted," he shouted, "we still will lack $1,500,000 of paying the appropriation bill which now is on the table." (This bill calls for more than $100,000,000 expenditures in the next two years.)

Harris estimated the proposed luxury tax would raise from $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 yearly.

He said if an amendment was adopted allocating $2,000,000 annually in sales tax revenues to the counties—as advocated by the Association of County Commissioners—the state would lack $3,500,000 of financing the new appropriations bill.

"If we don't pass it," he said, "you will have to raise $10,500,000 from other sources."

Harris urged the house to decide one way or the other on the revenue measures before Tuesday.

He again drew attention to his pleas for a horizontal 20 per cent cut in all appropriations, a move which was abandoned in a last-day surge of opposition while the budget bill was under consideration.

Alternative Plan.

Among other finance proposals offered in the course of debate was a plan by Representative Crawford Pilcher, youthful Warren countian, who said the budget could be paid "so that no department will suffer and yet not raise on extra penny of taxes."

He said he based his plan on figures showing $48,000,000 needed to finance the state and $42,000,000 collected. He proposed one approach by reducing 12 1-2 per cent all along the line, but pointed out there was objection to touching highway funds or school department revenues.

"Assuming that we would not touch them, or about $30,000,000, that would leave us $18,000,000 to cut 20 per cent. We could do this and it would give up $3,500,000. To this add the $1,500,000 we are going to save by passing the income tax amendment. This gives $5,000,000 extra money. Now the auditor's report showed last year's uncollected taxes for laws already existing exceeded $2,000,000. We'll be conservative and insist that only half, or $1,000,000 be collected. This gives your total of $6,000,000 needed to finance departments in full."

Representative John C. Parker, of Colquitt, asked "your plan does not include, does it, the economies possible through the investigating committee—about $2,000,000 a year?"

Pilcher said it did not and Representative Harley Jones arose and shouted: "Didn't you know, anyway, that the $98,000 worth of employes the welfare board cut off on recommendation of the committee already have been put back on?"

Pilcher reminded the house members that Governor Rivers told them last year that taxation was "like the sunshine, drawing up money into the clouds, then letting it down again covering the multitudes like rain."

Then, he observed:

"If you pass a sales tax, there's going to be a mighty long drought for Georgia citizens. An awful lot of money is going to be drawn up into those clouds and most of it dispersed there in overhead expenses. Very little falling back upon the people."

Other legislative business, in brief:

Representative DeFoor, of McIntosh, proposed yesterday a one per cent tax of the gross receipts of foreign corporations, partnerships and individuals selling gasoline, fuel oil and the like in Georgia.

The measure, Defoor said, was intended to require that such outside organizations and individuals "should pay their proportionate share of the expenses of the government" of the state. The tax would not apply to Georgia residents or to corporations incorporated under Georgia laws.

Representative Bennett of Ware and others proposed today a $25,000 appropriation for renovation and preservation of the display of natural resources in the state capitol.

Representative Davis, of Coweta, proposed a bill to require bus companies to provide seats for all persons who buy tickets between points at least 25 miles apart.

NEWSPAPERS PUT UNDER SALES TAX

Amendment Removes Exemption in Bill Under House Consideration.

By The Associated Press.

The house of representatives yesterday acted to place newspapers under the proposed 3 per cent retail sales tax levy.

Its action was by voice vote on an amendment introduced by Representative John M. Forrester, of Crisp county, to remove newspapers from the list of items exempted in the original bill.

This was under Section 7 of the sales tax bill which simply listed the articles exempted. The section read in part: "The sale at retail, the use, the consumption, the distribution, and the storage to be used or consumed in this state of the following tangible property is hereby specifically exempted from the terms of this act: water, newspapers, fertilizers and containers used for farm products when sold directly to the farmer."

Forrester's amendment struck out the word newspapers. Another amendment was suggested to specifically place the advertising sales of newspapers under the tax act.

Speaker Roy V. Harris said he deemed such an amendment unnecessary as he interpreted the elimination of newspapers from the exemption paragraph as making the tax applicable to the advertising as well as to their other functions. Legislators said they would regard the act as applying to all newspapers, dailies, weeklies or periodicals of any nature.

Sales taxes existing in southern states have little effect upon newspaper circulation.

The North Carolina levy has no direct bearing on weekday edition newspaper sales. The tax is added to the price at newstands in the case of Sunday editions retailing for 10 cents or more.

Mississippi newspapers are classified as manufacturers and are consequently exempt from the sales tax of that state. Louisiana papers also are exempted under the Louisiana tax law.

Alabama's sales tax, re-enacted effective March 1, does not apply to newspapers.

BREWSTER HAILS INSURANCE SLASH

Patrol Chief Says Reductions Proof of Better Conditions.

In summation of departmentl activties yesterday, Commissioner Phil Brewster, of the Department of Pulic Safety, pointed to insurance rate reductions as proof of improved conditions on Georgia highways.

He said liability insurance rates had been reduced in Bibb, Jones, Muskogee, Richmond, Fulton and DeKalb counties, thereby paying "dividends" to the motoring public.

The commissioner reported more than 150,000 persons were examined for drivers' licenses. About 200 had to stand re-examination and 200 were refused licenses because of faulty driving.

The licenses of nearly 1,000 motorists were revoked or suspended for traffic violations during the year and about 40,000 other drivers were arrested, given warning tickets or named in accident reports made by the patrolmen.

LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HONOR DR. YOST

Anniversary Service Tomorrow Marks Beginning of Pastor's 11th Year.

A special tenth-anniversary service will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer for Dr. John L. Yost, whose sermon will mark the beginning of his 11th year as pastor here.

The special service has been arranged by the church council. In addition to Dr. Yost's anniversary sermon, E. H. Younts, vice president of the church council, will make a brief speech of congratulation in the name of the congregation.

A feature of the service will be a special anthem, "Great Is the Lord," to be sung by the church choir. The anthem was written and dedicated to Dr. Yost by Christian W. Dieckmann, organist.

A graduate of Roanoke College and the Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary, Dr. Yost first began his pastorate work in North Carolina. In 1929, after a short but remrakable record there, he was called to Atlanta.

Since then he has received wide honors. The degree of doctor of divinity has been conferred upon him, and he was recently elected secretary of the Georgia-Alabama synod. A large group of friends and fellow pastors are expected to be present tomorrow for this latest honor.

Miss Louise Denman Marries Dr. Stephen Outlaw at Church Rites

Enlisting interest throughout Georgia and Florida is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lafayette Denman, of Miami and Atlanta, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Melmoth Louise Denman, to Dr. Stephen Crockett Outlaw, son of Mrs. Emily Godfrey Mathis, of Enterprise, Ala., and the late Robert L. Outlaw, of Lake Park. The rites were solemnized yesterday at 11 o'clock at Druid Hills Presbyterian church.

Dr. William Elliott, church pastor, officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. A musical program was presented by Mrs. A. L. Bush, of Commerce, sister of the groom.

The altar was banked with palms and ferns and beautified with floor baskets of white gladioli and Easter lilies.

Ushers were Julius and Andrew Denman, brothers of the bride.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Richard Holtzclaw, who was matron of honor. She wore a model of black sheer crepe posed over satin with matching accessories. Her flowers were pink roses.

The dainty blond bride, who entered with her matron of honor, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Francis Lamar Hearn, of Valdosta.

She wore a rust-colored two-piece wool suit, trimmed with japonica-colored buttons and worn with a japonica antelope hat and accessories. Completing her costume was a spray of talisman roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Denman, mother of the bride, was attired in a blue sheer crepe model worn with a black hat and accessories. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Dr. Outlaw and his bride left by motor for a wedding trip to Sea Island Beach, where they will spend two weeks. Upon their return they will reside in Avondale Estates.

Man's First Aim Should Be To Find Happiness in Family Circle

MY DAY: Good Plays Produced With Little Material

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Last night Colonel Harrington and Mrs. Kerr received a group of us at the opening of "The Swing Mikado," given under the auspices of the WPA theater project. It has been a great success in Chicago, and since it evidently played to full houses, I wondered why nobody protested here that it should not be produced.

One of my fellow columnists cited it the other day as an example, stating that it would be run in competition with Broadway legitimate theaters. I suppose that could be said of any WPA production, except for two very important factors. One of them is that the people who attend these performances are not, as a rule, the people who can afford to attend the average theater performance on Broadway. They would be more apt to go to the movies. In addition, the players are almost entirely actors and actresses who, for one reason or another, have been unable to find a job in the performances produced at present.

It is true that a few of them find jobs from time to time, but there always seem to be others to take their places. A few of the WPA performances have been taken over by private producers after they have proved unsuccessful, and I hope that will occur often. However, I do not see any good argument against giving an opportunity for employment to people who have a definite skill and who cannot find work of the kind that they are to do.

The thing which amazes me most about these performances is the fact that, with the material they must use, they succeed in producing such remarkably good plays. One would expect mediocrity and condone it; instead the artistic standards have been kept high.

This morning was spent in the same way I have spent so many, many others in New York city of late—a voice lesson and the dentist! I lunched out with an old friend who invited a number of my old friends as well as hers, which was a great pleasure.

I have just received a copy of a most interesting magazine called "Digest of the Deaf." This little publication attempts to show what the attitude of the public should be towards people handicapped by deafness. It tries to encourage the deaf, by reminding them how many people who have accomplished great things in this world have labored under the limitations of deafness.

This magazine, published in Springfield, Mass., should find a place in the hands of employers, in the hands of people who come in daily contact with deaf people, besides being invaluable to deaf people themselves.

I have been seeing people this afternoon almost in the way I do in Washington, but half-hour appointments are harder to run here in New York city, with no usher to terminate one appointment and conduct me to another room for the next one!

Get Together on Response Warns Bridge Teacher

By Harold Sharpsteen.

As long as folks continue to pick up rock-crusher hands at the bridge table, which means ad infintum, the Culbertson game-forcing two-suit demand is most likely to retain its universal popularity among the vast majority of contract players everywhere.

In view of these facts, it is high time players got together on the correct and standard responses for this bid.

One thing is certain, without a bullet-proof vest, players who refuse to abandon their own private notions as to how they should answer the demand, better avoid straying very far away from their favorite bridge haunts.

THE "KEOKUK-WAY."

"Well, that's not the way we do it, back in Keokuk," will never furnish sufficient protection for one obstinate bridge player against 29,999,999 others.

Most glaring misconceptions arise in the matter of wmen to respond two notrump . . . and what the two notrump means.

One group will tell you, two notrump means a "bust" hand.

Another faction declares it reveals a hand containing less than 1 1-2 honor tricks.

BOTH ARE WRONG.

Both are equally in error.

Two notrump is the correct response, lacking:

One and one-half honor tricks . . . no biddable suit . . . no support for partner suit.

A single raise to partner's opening two-suit demand may be made holding adequate trump support and at least one honor trick . . . not one and one-half honor tricks . . . not one honor trick plus.

SUIT TAKEOUTS.

A suit takeout is made on any biddable suit provided the hand contains 1 1-2 honor tricks . . . one honor trick plus with any biddable suit headed by ace, king or queen-jack . . . with one honor-trick with any five-card biddable suit headed by ace, king or queen-jack.

Two notrump response to an opening two-demand bid does not necessarily indicate a "bust" or worthless hand. . . . The response is made to indicate honor-trick strength.

NOT A "BUST."

Holding in spades: Q J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 and three worthless side-suit cards, partner responds two notrump to an opening two-heart bid. On subsequent rounds of bidding, partner may, however, bid spades until he runs out of breath.

'Til tomorrow. . . .

Woman's Quiz

Q. How is the crust for meat pie made?

A. The same way as biscuit dough, but with more fat. Melted fat from the meat may be used. The dough is rolled out about one-half inch thick to the proper size for the baking dish, placed on top of the filling, and baked in a hot oven at about 425 degrees Fahrenheit; that is, at slightly lower temperature than for biscuits. The crust bakes better if the filling is hot at the start.

Q. How may the yellowish spots made by alkaline substances resulting from the careless use of washing soda, lye, alkaline soaps, or insufficient rinsing, be removed?

A. When these spots do not yield to cold water, they will often respond to applications of mild acids, such as lemon juice, vinegar, or oxalic acid solution, followed by thorough rinsing.

HomeHappiness Abets Business Success

By Caroline Chatfield

It's a great pity that all the women in America can't get together, raise a big fund to send their husbands on polar expeditions; that is if all of them could see the great light as Admiral Byrd saw it while he was cooling his heels in polar darkness. In his book "Alone" he says more than once that a man's main business should be to find peace within himself and within his family circle; that, in the end, the only success which really counts is a man's possessing the understanding and affection of his family.

Queer that a man has to put himself in cold storage to get his wits to working, that he has to endure fierce physical hardship and anguishing solitude to grasp what any wife can tell her husband any night in their warm living room: Namely, that the best way for him to be happy and at peace is to make her happy and then it will follow as "the day the night" that the two of them will have a happy home in which there will be a happy family circle.

For the benefit of husbands who haven't been exploring, we might offer a few suggestions as to how a man can find peace within and peace in his family circle. Of course we'll have to assume that the missus is on her job, making a home where he can relax, giving him three meals a day that don't have to be chased by bicarbonate of soda, putting up conversation on other subjects than small tummy aches, sick headaches and the high cost of hats.

And we're off. First, Mr. Husband ought to take cognizance of these skills that loom large in the mind of the woman who engineers the project, giving her a big hand on her craftsmanship, remembering that compliments accompanied by a kiss on the cheek and a pat on the head are raised to the ninth degree. Good habits play a big part in good "husbandry" because women are as dependent upon regular responses as men are upon regular feedings.

Second, he should include her in his scheme of life, from consulting her about his clothes to confiding in her about his business. Third, he should be (at least) polite to her family and friends and he should not ram his family down her throat. Fourth, he should share the wealth (he's never shy about sharing the poverty) and give her the right to say "our income."

Why it's shocking to consider how little a man has to put up to get the affectionate understanding of his family which spells peace to his soul. He has only to pay bills and compliments, tell the whole truth; stay at home with her some of the time and stay sober when they go out together; practice politeness at all times and plan a few surprises.

Miraculously, the children will accept him at mother's valuation and that's fair; because when he's considerate of her, conscientious in discharging his obligations to her, she returns in kind and the kids follow suit.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

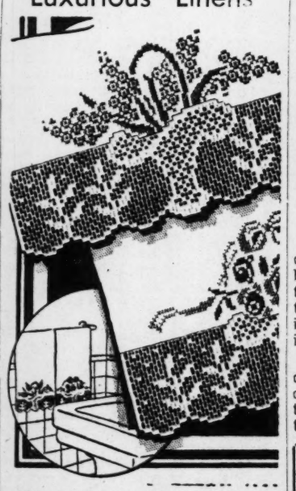

Worth Emulating: The wit and wisdom of wife who doesn't permit herself the luxury of criticizing her husband's undesirable associates while she keeps them at arm's distance with scrupulous politeness.

You Can Attain Normal Weight When You Please

By Ida Jean Kain.

Wouldn't you have a conniption if you thought once you weighed 50 pounds too much you would always have to stay that way! That you could never get it off!

But that could only happen in a bad dream. You know that you can get down to normal weight any time you please and so, holding that thought, many of you go right along for years weighing much too much.

Knowing that you can always do something about your weight may be what stops you. Getting started on a reducing diet is half the battle—certainly the first half—and you have to win it before you can get your weight down.

Ever so often, you people who are excessively overweight probably think seriously of going on a diet. But then, you begin to realize how you hate to give up food. And you know you are going to be hungry!

You are right: You will be hungry . . . but not for long. On any diet, the first three days are the hungriest, because your eyes are not bigger than your stomach. That organ is almost limitless in its capacity and the more you eat the more it stretches. The adaptability of the stomach is the main cause of overeating and overweight.

It is also, however, the reason you do not keep on being hungry on your reducing diet. The stomach very obligingly shrinks with smaller meals, and your appetite gradually becomes smaller. After awhile, you are just as satisfied on less food. As Mr. Einstein might put it, the question is one of relativity—the size of the stomach as compared to the size of the meal!

In spite of the food cut on a reducing diet, the quality of the food is very often improved. Since the object is to satisfy body needs, not only are most of the calories in the protective foods but the concentrated vitamins supplement the menus. A diet so highly reinforced with the protective foods will increase your vitality while you lose weight.

When you can convince yourself that you won't be really hungry after the first three days and that instead of being weak and worn out on a reducing diet, you will improve your health, there will be less of a struggle in getting started.

Don't put your diet off too long, or you will build up the idea that it is much harder than it is. Reducing is no snap but it is far from the ordeal some overweights imagine it to be. It is getting started that is hard . . . and unless you go ahead and reduce, it is just as if you couldn't get slim.

BALANCED DIET TO MAKE YOU LOSE.

Majority Infected With T. B. Have Protective Immunity

By Dr. William Brady.

Nearly every adult has a little tuberculosis, a latent or smouldering focus in a lymph node somewhere, from infection in infancy, childhood or youth. Only a few of these ever develop active, clinical tuberculosis. Why doesn't every one who is infected with tuberculosis in early life succumb to the disease? Because the great majority so infected have sufficient immunity to protect them from ordinary, small, not too frequently repeated infections or from infections with tubercle bacilli of not too virulent a type or strain.

Let's say nothing at all about "resistance" here. That doesn't mean a thing. Immunity means something. It has a definite, specific significance. "Resistance" is a trick word when doctors use it, a malapropism when laymen use it in this way. Whenever anybody utters the word "resistance" in discussing susceptibility to disease I know at once that the discussion will be unprofitable. Every written or spoken argument or exposition of the cause and prevention of respiratory infection in which the word "resistance" is used is just so much medical hooey, in my judgment, and heaven knows our internal medical literature is stuffed full enough with such piffle, without mixing it in everything we feed the laity.

Equally hackneyed and inane is the familiar teaching that "plenty of pure fresh air, plain wholesome food and regular sleep" protects against tuberculosis. Ask the "expert" (usually some one other than a bona fide physician) that says this to explain what he means by pure fresh air and good wholesome food and after he has floundered about you will know no more about it than he does.

A large part of the food that passes as choice, refined, pure, wholesome and especially "easily digestible" today, nutrition authorities tell us, is actually deficient in or devoid of essential nutritive elements, particularly minerals and vitamins. Instead of sounding off everlastingly about "good wholesome food" the composers of anti-tuberculosis propaganda might use some of the ink they have at their disposal to inform people of the vital importance of sufficient daily intake of minerals and vitamins as well as proteins, fats and carbohydrates, to maintain good nutrition and immunity against tuberculosis. They might even take a chance and teach people the superior value of all dairy products and green groceries in this respect, especially fresh raw milk from tuberculin-tested cows (or cream, butter, sour milk, skim milk, buttermilk, cottage cheese, Dutch cheese from the same tuberculosis-free source) or the fresh raw milk of a goat, an animal practcially immune to tuberculosis.

Every one should eat an egg a day, as good eating, good nourishment, good protective food, good economy. No room here to go into details, but suffice that an egg provides what it takes. Every one should have his egg cooked as he prefers. Raw egg has no advantage, in fact is less nutritious than cooked egg unless one prefers egg raw.

By green groceries we mean any and all fresh vegetables and fresh fruits available, and in this category the greens such as dandelion greens, mustard greens, beet tops, onion tops, in short any leaves that are at all edible or available are as well worth the tuberculous family's money as are milk, cream, butter and eggs, for the greens furnish in generous measure the calcium, phosphorus, iron and other minerals and the vitamins required to maintain vite.

A clue to spring and summer smartness is this two-piece Mayflower frock. Suitable for active and spectator sports use, it consists of a cabana striped poplin blouse and solid chambray skirt. The blouse can be worn tucked in or out.

STARS SHINE OVER GEORGIA

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Foremost American Astrologer

MELL TURNER.

March 30 marks the natal date of Mell Turner. This brings this birthdate under the influence of the Zodiacal sign Aries. Aries is the first sign of the Zodiac, and is the sign of forethought, originality, ambition, vigor.

The Sun-Moon position in this chart gives good memory and concentration. This position also tends to make potent the mental facilities, giving great adaptability, quickness of comprehension and tal requirements of the situation.

Saturn's position adds tact, diplomacy, self-reliance and steadiness to the courage developed by the position of Mars. There is a love of travel and of learning.

The house position of the Moon gives versatility, independence and enthusiasm.

The position of the planet Jupiter becomes the promise of not only long life, but success in his particular field of endeavor.

LadyWithHouse Continues Diary

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Sunday—If you want to go romantic and light your home with candles, don't think you'll be saving on the light bill. One lady of means uses candles for sentiment all over her house except in the kitchen—the annual bill is a mere $3,000. Of course they are very extra fancy candles. But even so!

Monday—A letter from a relative visiting in Havana describes the lavish use of mahogany down there . . . for floors and woodwork of cheap houses, for porches and, of course, for furniture. But alas my kinswoman reports that the furniture is very ugly despite the fine wood—the design and carving is something to weep over, says she. One good thing about it, however, is that it doesn't have any pinkish paint over it. The lovely wood grain is left in its natural color which is according to this year's Hoyle in smart furniture here.

Tuesday—I have my heart set on one of those graceful end tables with a sunken metal lined well for plants or flowers. Watch for more flower furniture—wall shelves with compartments for plants, tables with holders for vases or pots, and all types of end tables with metal lined containers sunk in their tops.

Wednesday—Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, speaking about housing the other day, maintained that New York does not have the worst slums in the United States if you consider them in proportion to population. The New York slums only seem worse because these are so many more people. Actually, said he, conditions, per capita, are worse in certain backward mountain communities and in some mining sections. His emphasis on the brass tacks of slum clearance reminded me that for many thousands of families, the housing problem isn't a question of colonial doorways but of basic sanitation and ventilation.

Thursday—Here's a tidbit for my furniture scrapbook:

"In bed we laugh, in bed we cry,
And born in bed, in bed we die
The near approach a bed may show
Of human bliss to human woe."
—Samuel Johnson.

Friday—Did you ever try grating fresh cocoanut over ice cream? It's delicious on vanilla—even better on pistachio. Another gourmet touch for your table—pine-cot preserves, made of pineapple and apricots, are something to dream about if you add a few chopped almonds or chopped pecans.

Saturday — Card-playing was Mary Queen of Scots' favorite diversion during her captivity and she spent most of her small allowance on gambling. Later, however, card-playing became even more of a passion till it got so that the audience would even play during intermissions at the theater. A prime minister of England once gambled away the gorgeous staircase that formed the entrance to Huntington House. Thenceforth both family and guests had to use the service entrance . . . Cards were introduced into America by Columbus; his sailors played constantly, but finally grew superstitious for fear their cards were responsible for the delay in finding land. They threw them overboard, but when they landed made more cards out of leaves of the copas tree.

Burns Acts as Gracie's Director for New Picture

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 3.—"The Gracie Allen Murder Case." . . . The actor on the set doing the most emoting is George Burns. But you won't find his name on the credit sheet. George is acting as his wife's director and adviser and goes through an agony of facial distortion as Gracie does her stuff for the camera. He bites his fingernails, repeats the words she says and sings—his mouth sometimes stays rigid and open for seconds at a time before relaxing into pleased relief.

Ellen Drew comes on the set with a towel draped fetchingly on her head. . . . I gather from Ellen that her part in the movie is inconsequential. "But you'll love the picture—if you like Gracie Allen—and most people do. Everyone else acts as her stooge," says Ellen. . . . The little blonde actress tells me that she has been kissed in every one of her pictures. So I naturally ask which gentleman gave her the most enjoyable kiss. She hesitate (Ellen, after all, is a married woman), and then puts her cross against Kent Taylor's name (he is her romance in this picture). Ronald Colman, whom she loved in "If I Were King," is second on her kissing list. George Raft—her kisser in "The Lady's From Kentucky"—is listed as least exciting!

Lionel Barrymore is in his wheelchair and getting a pep talk from Assistant Director Horace Hough. "Get on the set, you old So-and-So," says Horace. Lionel obediently wheels himself toward the camera.

"And, when you get there," says Horace, following up his advantage, "I don't suppose you'll know your lines." "I do, too," says Barrymore meekly. Mr. Hough is the only person on the picture who does not baby the sick actor—and the only one who gets his obedience and respect.

"Maiden Voyage." . . . The scene is a railway station in Switzerland. The train and station also appeared in "Anna Karenina," "Three Comrades," and every other Metro picture requiring a station and train. . . . French Actress Annabella is dressed in thick woolen stockings, porter's cape and cap. She is utterly exhausted—and so would you be if you had been carrying three heavy bags from the train to the buggy all morning. When Director William Thiele at last says he is entirely pleased with the "take"—i. e., "Thank you, precious darling"—Annabella throws her arms toward the sky and says the French equivalent of "whoopee," and then chants happily in English, "I'm through with the bags today, ho ho, I'm through with the bags today."

Annabella, a very tactful young lady, tells the director she wants to have my dress copied for a scene on a boat. Well, I suppose the next best thing to being in a picture yourself is to have your dress in it!

Because the scene is in Switzerland, the ground is covered with "snow"—in other words, "gypsnow," a white substance also used as a fertilizer and bought at $11 a ton. . . . The cutest things on the set are the icicles, made of cellophane covered with gypsnow. In the care of the head prop man are 16 spare icicles. He presents one to me. (It now hangs outside my window, reflecting the hot California sun.)

Blouse-With-Skirt, by Barbara Bell

This is particularly charming version of the blouse-with-skirt fashion that fits so smartly and usefully into your present and future plans.

The skirt of 1664B has a smart circular flare. It is cut to a high, small, princess waist-line that holds your blouse securely. And this is such a nice tailored blouse—not too tailored, with bodice fullness under the smooth shoulder-yoke, and high-shouldered sleeves. Darts draw it into a small waist. Both blouse and skirt are easy to make. For the skirt, choose wool crepe, flannel or flat crepe. For the blouse, satin, silk crepe, linen or print.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1664-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 1 3-4 yards of 39-inch material for the blouse with short sleeves; 2 1-8 yards for long-sleeved blouse. Skirt requires 2 yards of 54-inch material.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—Stocks climbed aboard the recovery van in today's market and pushed up as much as 2 or more points, many to highs for the past year.

The ascent was accomplished at a little speedier pace, with transfers for the five hours totaling 1,016,765 shares against 599,215 the day before. It was the first million-share day since February 28. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .6 of a point at 52.3, the best day's advance since last Friday.

Brokers attributed the comeback, after two days of virtual stalemate, partly to a more optimistic outlook for a spring business upswing and to the further lessening of apprehension over Europe's confusing political panorama.

In addition, strength of American securities in the London market before the opening here was taken as a buying cue, and commission houses with foreign connections reported a pickup in purchasing orders in the New York mart from overseas.

Fractions to more than a point higher in the curb were Electric Bond & Share, Lockheed, Jones & Laughlin, United Light & Power "A," Creole and American Cyanamid "B." Turnover of 162,000 shares compared with 139,000 Thursday.

CHICAGO, March 3.—(AP)—Wheat prices wavered within a narrow range of only 3-8 cent today, but closed a shade higher reflecting strength in foreign grain markets and in securities in the east as well as indications of slightly improved international demand.

Trading was dull most of the session, with purchases credited to shippers, millers and Seaboard houses absorbing quiet selling based on forecast of further moisture in the winter wheat belt. Just before the close the government announced an increase of 10 cents a barrel in the export flour subsidy on shipments from the Pacific coast to China and Hongkong.

Most of the underlying market support, traders said, apparently came from the domestic commercial trade with buying in connection with the movement and processing of wheat and sale of flour broad enough to absorb what small selling appears.

Wheat closed unchanged to 3-8 higher compared with yesterday, May and July 69 to 68 7-8; corn was unchanged to 1-8 up, May 49 1-4 to 49 3-8, July 50 5-8; oats unchanged to 1-8 higher; rye 1-8 up; lard 12 to 15 higher.

Liverpool wheat finished higher after being slightly lower most of the day. Some Argentine wheat was reported sold to the United Kingdom while negotiations between Argentina and Spain for purchase by the latter of 7,360,000 bushels of wheat, 1,000,000 of oats and 600,000 of barley were concluded. Greece took 35,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for shipment from Boston and approximately 100,000 bushels of Rumanian, the latter at 49 cents a bushel.

Argentine rains were unfavorable for corn. Oats and rye trade was quiet. Rumors of sales for export from here were not confirmed. Outstanding strength in lard reflected the decrease in stocks.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—A broad buying movement swept rail, industrial and utilities loans to the crest of the current upswing in the bond market today.

At the same time gains running up to 20-23ds of a point carried United States government obligations still further into record high territory.

The Associated Press index of 10 industrial corporates advanced 1 point to 100.4, equalling the 1938 high and the top since September, 1937. Rail and utility averages were the highest in three months or more.

Dominating the advance, bond analysts said, were increasing signs of government-business rapproachment which in turn might lead to tapping for industrial needs the huge reservoir of idle bank funds. An economy drive in congress was also seen as a buying factor by many brokers.

Outside the move in the United States government advances in rails were most substantial.

Advancing utilities included: New York Richmond Gas 6s, up 2 5-8 at 103 5-8; International Hydro Electric 6s up 1 at 84; Detroit Edison 4 1-2s, up 1-4 at 112 3-4, and Western Union 5s up 1 1-8 at 65.

Among a few foreign governments to show strength were South Americans. Issues of Panama, Peru, Sao Paulo and Beunos Aires showed fractional gains.

Total transactions were $8,332,500 face value compared with $7,332,400 yesterday.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Low demand for raw sugar cramped buyer's interest in the staple for future delivery today and closing prices were unchanged to 2 points lower in the domestic contract. Demand from trade, speculative and Cuban sources partly offset hedging and liquidation. Sales totaled 25,450 tons.

The world contract held independently firm on speculative demand attracted by steadier cables from London. Sales totaled 4,350 tons, with final prices unchanged to 1 up; May 1.14½, December 1.14.

No 3 range follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.
March	1.80	1.80	1.80

July	1.93	1.92	1.91 bid
September	1.96	1.95	1.95
January	1.93	1.92	1.93

Total sales 508.

Duty-free raw sugar was offered at 2.80 cents, the level at which operators purchased an estimated 12,000 tons Thursday, but no further sales were reported today. Cubans were quoted nominally at 2.85 cents. The refined range continued at 4.30@4.40.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Coffee futures declined sharply today as increased selling of distant deliveries by trade and foreign interests revealed limited demand.

Santos closed 5 to 8 down on sales of 12,250 bags; May 6.10, July 6.17b, September 6.25, December 6.30. Rio ended 3 to 6 off on sales of 1,000 bags; March 4.15b, May 4.23b, July 4.26b, September 4.28b, December 4.30b. (b-Bid.)

Spot coffee remained steady: Rio 7s at 5⅛; Santos 4s 7¼@8. Cost and freight offerings included Santos Bourbon 3s and 5s at 6.60@7.15.

Plauche Report.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Secretary Henry Plauche, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, said today sale of fertilizer tags for the seven months ending February 28 totaled 1,165,215 tons, compared with 1,175,771 tons for the same period last year, a decrease of 10,556 tons.

The figures, Plauche said, were based on reports of agricultural bureaus and state boards in the various states in the cotton belt and were for all crops grown in the region.

North Carolina, the largest purchaser; Arkansas and Mississippi were the only states showing an increase over the previous period.

Sales by states (in tons) for the period ending February 28, 1939, compared with last year's figures, follows:

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 5 points lower at 8.72 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 market days was 8.52 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed 3 to 5 points higher today as foreign interests bought May and July contracts and trade price-fixing firmed up old crop positions.

From time to time during the session there were short-lived flurries of southern selling and local profit-taking, but buyers quickly absorbed offerings.

May was particularly strong, climbing to 8.31, the highest since January 4 last. March registered a 5-point gain.

Fairly large sales of 38-inch 64x60 5.35 yard prints were reported in otherwise routine Worth Street business. Reports persisted buyers were willing to book fairly substantial amounts of print cloths, but that mills were refusing bids at the recent low levels.

Exports today 14,233 bales; season so far 2,657,477. Port receipts 5,610; port stocks 2,521,765.

BUICK TO EXPAND PRODUCTION RATE

Factory Operations Extended From Four to Five Days a Week.

FLINT, Mich., March 3.—Harlow H. Curtice, president of the Buick division of General Motors, today announced a boost in production schedules for March and extension of factory operations from four to five days a week.

The new schedule will increase the hours of approximately 13,300 employes to 40 a week from the 32-hour week in force during January and February. The Buick factories will continue to operate on a two-shift basis, the executive said.

According to the announcement, Buick output this month will be increased to 26,650 units, including production for export, which compares with 19,650 units built in February and with 20,000 in January, the best winter production, by a substantial number of cars, in the history of the company.

The executive announced that there had been no seasonal layoffs at Buick plants this winter.

HEATH IS CLEARED, RUMORS DENOUNCED

20 Witnesses Speak in His Behalf; Bridges Has No Charges.

City council's police committee, inquiring into obscure rumors afloat in political circles since the promotion of Patrolman Cuba Heath to a lieutenancy, last night not only cleared the officer but "condemned such efforts to blacken the character of an honest officer."

Witness after witness was paraded before the committee but none was able to produce any testimony detrimental to Heath's character or reputation. Heath produced approximately 20 character witnesses who spoke in his behalf.

Chief Hornsby asked the committee to make a fair investigation of rumors which he said had been circulating since Heath's promotion to a lieutenant by the committee last Monday night.

Heath Denies Rumors.

Heath himself told the committee, "I have heard rumors that I was a jailbird, an escaped convict and a bootlegger with a police record as long as my arm for drunken driving." He denied any of these rumors were true.

Among witnesses ordered to appear before the committee was Alderman G. Dan Bridges, former chairman of the police committee. In questioning Bridges, Mayor Hartsfield, who conducted most of the cross-examination, said:

"The information has come to us that there was possibly something wrong with the record of Lieutenant Heath. The information was that you knew something about his record and made statements concerning this record. If there is anything wrong it should be brought to our attention and we should take some action. If anyone is justified in filing any charges the committee ought to know about them."

Bridges, No Charges.

Bridges replied by saying:

"I have no charges to make against Heath. I'm not here to get his job. I don't care what you do with him. You can elect him to anything you like."

The committee postponed trials of R. R. Davis and J. A. Bailey, recently convicted in Fulton superior court on bribery charges, and called a special meeting for next Friday night. The committee also approved a resolution asking the legislature to provide that a member of the police or fire department indicted on a felony charge should be suspended pending trial, and, if convicted, should be automatically discharged from the department.

GEORGIANS URGE MORE RELIEF FUNDS

Democratic Council Groups Make Recommendations.

Legislative and primary committees of the Democratic Council of Georgia have passed resolutions asking the general assembly to amend the primary laws of the state; to limit the campaign expenditures of candidates for public office and urging the Georgia delegation in congress to support the passage of further relief funds, Lawrence S. Camp, chairman, reported yesterday.

The primary law amendment, he said, would restrict party members to voting in their own primary elections, and would penalize violators.

The resolution stated that "to permit the unrestricted voting of members of the state Republican party in our Democratic primaries is inimical to Democratic solidarity."

Georgia senators and representatives were asked to support return of $150,000,000 cut from the emergency relief bill.

BARBARA HUTTON'S SON RULED OVER TO COUNT

LONDON, March 4.—(AP)—Lance Haugwitz-Reventlow, son of Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow and Barbara Hutton, is to live with his father while he grows up, according to a decision of the chancery division of the high court of justice. The petition indicated the countess agreed to the plan.

Man Climbs 25 Stories, Finds Firm Has Moved

MINNEAPOLIS, March 3.—(AP) It's—nothing —b u t— a— swindle, panted Mike Curran.

Curran, a messenger, clumped to the 25th floor of the Rand tower with a missive for the Rand companies. Because of a strike of building service employes at 34 office buildings elevators weren't operating.

Leg weary and breathing heavily, Curran reached the 25th level only to discover the company had established temporary offices on the second floor for duration of the strike.

MACDOUGALL HEADS NEW PLANNING BODY

Plans Pushed for Complete Zoning Survey of Fulton County.

Robert L. MacDougall, technical advisor of the Atlanta Housing Authority, yesterday was named chairman of the newly established Fulton county planning commission and plans were pushed for a WPA project for a complete survey of the county looking toward detailed zoning of every district.

Eugene W. O'Brien, editor of Southern Power Journal, was named vice chairman as the group began a preliminary study of problems facing it.

Frank H. Neely, executive vice president of Rich's, Inc., who also is a member of the commission, was host at a luncheon, to which Walter C. Hendrix, county attorney, and Raymond Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, also were invited.

Hendrix and Torras outlined legal authorities of the commission and procedure plans, respectively.

The commission passed unanimously resolutions offering its service and advice to the 10 municipalities in Fulton county and requesting their co-operation in utilizing zoning facilities now available.

MRS. ROOSEVELT CHRISTENS CLIPPER

74-Passenger Ship Which Will Hop Atlantic, Carries High Officials.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—(AP) The "Yankee Clipper," 41-ton flagship of a flying boat fleet which will carry the United States' colors in an international race for trans-Atlantic air supremacy, made its maiden passenger-carrying flight today.

Christened by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the 74-passenger flying boat—largest in the world—skimmed off the Anacostia river from the naval air station with 51 government and aviation officials aboard, circled the capital for 35 minutes and landed again.

Several thousand wide-eyed spectators watched the laughing first lady crack a gold-trimmed bottle over the blunt nose of the all-metal, four-motored plane.

Water from the seven seas, rather than the customary champagne, filled the bottle. It splashed on Mrs. Roosevelt's face.

The ship, which bystanders said looked "longer than two box cars" (it's 109 feet overall) and "tall as five six-footers" (it's really 28 feet 6 inches high), then was warped into position.

The ship's wingspan is 152 feet. It can do 190 miles per hour, but its cruising speed is 150. Its range is 4,725 miles, officials said, and its ceiling 21,000 feet.

Another Pan-American Airways' 74-passenger Clipper today completed her maiden trans-Pacific flight, alighting at Hongkong on the final leg from Manila.

BALLOT ON REPEAL IS TIED IN SUMTER

Next Move Is Shrouded in Doubt; Leaders Plan New Vote Call.

AMERICUS, Ga., March 3.—(AP) The voters have spoken, but the wet and dry issue remains very much an issue in Sumter county because no one knows what they said.

Election officials today said 610 votes were cast for legalization of liquor in yesterday's referendum, and 610 against.

Proponents said another election should be called immediately. Others said two years must elapse under the law.

The attorney general of Georgia, in Atlanta, declined to give an opinion for the time being.

First announcement that the vote was a tie came last night shortly after polls closed throughout the county, of which Americus is the county seat.

Adherents of both sides merely smiled, however, and said the official count would settle the question.

But the official count today was the same—610 for and 610 against.

Lovelace Eve, chairman of the Sumter county legalization committee, has requested Ordinary R. T. Hawkins to call another referendum. The ordinary took the request under advisement.

But from County Attorney W. W. Dykes came an opinion that another petition must be signed by 35 per cent of the voters before another election can be called. He expressed doubt whether another election can be called within two years.

RIVERS APPROVES HOSPITAL BOARD

Signs Bill Creating Trustee Group in Augusta.

Governor Rivers yesterday signed a measure to authorize creation of a nine-man board of trustees for the University hospital at Augusta.

The mayor and the chairman of the Richmond county commissioners will be ex-officio members and the mayor will appoint, with council approval, seven citizens members. The citizen member terms will be five years from original appointment, then two will be named for two years, two for four and three for five.

The board would maintain and operate the University hospital and make quarterly financial reports to the mayor and council.

700 BRAVE CIO IRE FOR HOMER MARTIN

Delegates Answer Call to Convention Speeding Showdown in UAW Feud.

DETROIT, March 3.—(UP)—Seven hundred delegates from United Automobile Workers' Union locals braved threats of expulsion from the Congress of Industrial Organizations tonight to answer Homer Martin's call for a convention to hasten a final showdown in the union's family feud.

Martin, one of two rival presidents of the UAW, predicted that when the convention opens tomorrow "it will be clear to everyone" that victory in the union strife would be with his faction.

"At this hour, most of the 700 to 800 delegates are in Detroit," Martin said in an address tonight.

"They represent a clear and concise majority of the organized automobile workers of the nation."

Earlier Martin estimated that his convention delegates would represent more than 200,000 of the union's estimated 350,000 members.

Martin's opponents, who have the support of the CIO, scoffed at his claims of support.

"He may have the delegates, but they don't represent anybody," R. J. Thomas, president of the anti-Martin faction, charged.

The CIO-supported group has claimed the support of more than 300,000 UAW members. The UAW-CIO has called a convention of its followers to be held in Cleveland March 27.

Fireworks at the Martin convention were expected to be touched off by debates over Communism and affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

Grand Jury Presentments, Jan.-Feb., 1939, Term

PRESENTMENTS JANUARY FEBRUARY TERM, 1939 GRAND JURY.

Hon. Paul S. Etheridge
Judge, Superior court,
Fulton County,
Atlanta, Ga.

The Grand Jury, selected for the January-February term, has completed its work, as far as possible, and wishes to make the following report:

The greater part of our time has been devoted to routine matters. However, during the early part of February charges were made in a meeting of the Commissioners of Roads and Revenue of extravagance and uncalled for expenditures on the part of one of the Commissioners who had resigned from the board. As these charges were prominent in the headlines of our daily papers, this body believed it was their duty to investigate them to the best of their ability. All of the members of the present Board of Commissioners were invited to appear before our body. Ex-Commissioner Longino was given the same privilege.

From the information obtained from these gentlemen, this body is of the opinion that our Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenue is largely handicapped by the antiquated laws under which they operate. We call your attention to the recent annexation of two counties to Fulton County, adding many miles of new territory. Also to the rapid growth of the City of Atlanta and the further fact that thousands of our citizens have moved from the city proper to adjacent county territory. These physical changes have brought about many new problems. During recent years the Board of Commissioners has had an opportunity of making many new developments through the aid of the WPA and the PWA. They have further been called upon to take over the relief situation in this county. These new burdens have, to a large extent, been the cause of the unbalanced budget.

This Jury is of the opinion that the time has arrived when the Commissioners of this County should halt and take an accounting of themselves as well as making an accounting to the people of Fulton County whom they represent.

We believe that under the present set-up of the Commissioners it will be impossible for them to keep County expenditures within the present County income. It is therefore recommended by this Jury that the bill formulating a budget system for the Fulton County Commissioners now before the Legislature, be immediately, favorably acted upon. We understand that all of the present members of the Board of Commissioners have indorsed a budget bill. We urge our State Senator and our Legislative members not to allow this bill to be emasculated by amendments. The present bill, we understand, contains the best thought of our bankers and leading businessmen and under no circumstances should be weakened for any purpose whatsoever. We are herewith attaching a draft of a bill that has been tendered this body with the assurance that it would meet the indorsement of the bankers of the City. Naturally, any budget bill that is approved by our Legislature should be one that has the indorsement of the financial interest. The Commissioners should be in a position to borrow money from time to time without any handicap. The adoption of a bill of the nature of the attached will make this possible.

It will be unfortunate, indeed, if some restraint is not placed upon the Commissioners to prevent further extravagances. The many demands that are being made upon them for paved roads, sewers, parks and various other improvements, cannot easily be denied under the present system. The budget system will be a protection to them as well as the people of the County.

We have dwelt at length on the importance of new and approved legislation to govern the County Board for we realize not only the importance but the absolute necessity of this being done, if taxes are to be kept at a reasonable rate.

This body desires to protest the enactment of any legislation that will add additional taxes to the already over-burdened tax payer. The general conditions do not warrant increased taxes. It will be far wiser for our officials in our municipality, county and state to pursue a course of economy. We recommend a reduction in overhead and administrative expense with a view of a reduction of taxes. It is our opinion that if useless offices are abolished and unnecessary employes eliminated, and the County affairs administered in an economical manner, there would be no need for additional taxes, and should result in decreasing the present rate.

It is with regret that we note that in spite of economic conditions and increased tax rates and increased assessments, the county authorities have seen fit to increase salaries by nearly half a million dollars during the period from 1933 to 1939. As far as we have been able to ascertain, this includes only a small addition to its personnel. It is our opinion that the salaries paid County employes are considerably in excess of salaries paid employes doing similar work in private business. While we believe that efficient and loyal employes should be remunerated liberally, yet we cannot indorse any amount beyond a fair and reasonable remuneration for service rendered. We recommend that the Commissioners make an investigation of the salaries paid to all County employes with a view of doing justice to the employe as well as to the employers, who are the tax payers of the County. Also, that they investigate the number of relatives of County officials who are employed. It is our opinion that all county employes should be selected and employed based on ability and not on account of relationship to County Officials.

We are still of the opinion that the creation of two new Judgeships at this time was not necessary, or rather unwise, because of the financial condition of the county. As the Municipal Court was supplying an additional Judge it may be possible to take care of part of this new expense in a reduction in the number of Municipal Judges.

While we realize that well selected and planned parks are an asset to the County, we do not believe it is wise at the present time to add to the number of parks that have already been established. We recommend that improvement on the present system of parks be confined to a minimum, until such a time when conditions will justify an expansion of the park program.

We are informed that constant demands are made on the Commissioners by citizens living outside of the City limits for improvements in various localities such as sewers, water, lights, fire protection and other conveniences that citizens living in the corporate limits enjoy. In fairness to all the citizens of the county, we believe that such requests should be granted only upon the agreement of the citizens of the community which is to be benefitted, to pay an equitable tax. This additional tax to be paid by the district in which these improvements are made. As the question of combining the City and County governments is being agitated at this time, this Grand Jury has approved a special presentment and same has been forwarded to our State Senator and members of the Legislature from this County, requesting a proposed constitutional amendment to be adopted to move the existing prohibtion against the merging of governmental functions of the City of Atlanta and Fulton County. This Grand Jury believes that this community should have the right to merge City and County functions as this right is accorded to every other County in the State by the Constitution of the State of Georgia.

Testimony was presented to this Grand Jury that a large number of County employes, especially in the Department of Public Works, have grown old in the service of the County and many now on the pay roll of the County are inefficient because of age and feebleness. From a humanitarian standpoint, these men are allowed to remain in their jobs. This is commendable on the part of those in authority and we do not wish to criticize this policy. However, we do believe that as soon as practical, a pension system should be adopted by the County in order to retire the aged and infirm so they may enjoy a well-earned rest.

Requests from various citizens have been made to this body to pass resolutions relative to the large number of aliens who refuse to become naturalized but are enjoying the liberty and freedom of our American Country. A section of the presentments of a recent DeKalb County Grand Jury has been sent to us and we feel that the Citizens of the County should be informed relative to the facts that have been presented. We take the liberty to quote a section of the recent DeKalb County Grand Jury presentments:

"Attention has been called to the fact that the number of aliens in the United States creates a real menace and since statements recently made show approximately ten million aliens in the United States who have failed to take the first steps to become American Citizens and since recently published articels show that three and a half million of these aliens are gainfully employed in the United States, holding jobs that should be held by American citizens and since it is also shown that between two and a half and three million aliens are on the public relief rolls being fed and supported with money paid by American tax payers and since it is claimed that over a million of these aliens have criminal records and many have been ordered deported by the courts and since the hot bed of subversive teachings can be found among this alien element, this Grand Jury recommends that the Federal Government be asked to deport immediately all criminal aliens and all destitute aliens who are on relief and that the Federal Government be asked to deport all other aliens within six months unless said aliens have taken steps to become American citizens. It further recommends that proper action be taken to make failure to qualify as a citizen within twelve months after immigration, grounds for deportation, and that the Federal Government be asked to put an immediate stop to all immigration for ten years or until such a time as there shall be no able-bodied citizen unemployed. We request that the clerk of this court send a copy of this recommendation to each of the ten Georgia Congressmen and the two United States Senators with the request that they give this matter careful attention and take the lead in Congress to bring about this much-needed relief from the alien question."

We feel that the large number of persons who have been indicted for murder by this Grand Jury should be brought to your attention. We believe that the bearing of concealed weapons is a menace to this community. It appears that a large number of our colored citizens are armed and ready to shoot and kill at the least provocation. We do not know that this condition can be improved until more stringent laws are enacted. We do feel, however, that the maximum of the law should be given each offender.

The old evil of the pawn broker and junk dealer is still with us. We believe that if the pawn broker could be more strictly supervised, a certain amount of crime could be reduced. We have had evidence before this Jury of a large number of automobiles being forced open and the contents removed and finally located in the pawn shops. The greater number of these automobiles were from out of the State and generally en route to Florida. The acts appear to be committed by young white boys averaging from sixteen to twenty-odd years old. Naturally, visitors having this experience can not think very highly of our City and the memory of their trip to or through Atlanta will not be very pleasant. Worse than this is the fact that the boys who are committing these crimes will be seasoned criminals in a few years. We believe that if it was made difficult for them to dispose of their loot, this type of crime would be reduced. We have dwelt on this phase of crime as it appears very prevalent in Atlanta at this time. It is a matter of common knowledge that the pawn shop is a standing invitation to the dope fiend, the habitual drunkard, as well as to the large class of whites and blacks who do not work but depend on their efforts of petty stealing for a livelihood.

We urge the City Council of Atlanta to pass an Ordinance requiring all Pawn Brokers and Junk Dealers doing business in Atlanta to take fingerprints of all persons offering goods for sale, or for loan. We believe the passage and enforcement of such an Ordinance will prevent a large number of thefts and burglaries.

F. R. MITCHELL,
Foreman.

H. I. WEAVER,
Secretary.

Close akin to the pawn broker is the junk dealer. We have evidence that some of the dealers purchase material knowing that it is stolen property. Organized racketeers are stealing plumbing and electrical fixtures from vacant properties. Others are stealing materials from their employers and selling it for many times less than its value. We have ample laws to remedy these conditions. We recommend stricter enforcement of the pawn shop and junk dealer ordinances. We recommend that the officers of the law prefer charges against those receiving stolen goods after the principals have been convicted. We believe that if police officers are more alert in watching vacant properties it will contribute a great deal toward stamping out this aggravating and costly class of crime.

We offer a recommendation that the Georgia Legislature enact legislation that will make it mandatory for a person to serve sentence when the records indicate that he has been convicted on three charges of felony. We believe in such cases that every avenue to escape sentence should be closed by law.

This Jury has given its indorsement to an act now pending before the Georgia Legislature. The bill provides to prohibit the employment of or payment to any tax ferret or other person on a commission basis by any officer, board or agency in the State of Georgia, or any county thereof, or any municipality for collecting taxes, license or fees, etc. A copy of this act is herewith attached.

We recommend that these presentments be published in one of the Atlanta newspapers of general circulation. We would also recommend this course to succeeding Grand Juries for it is unnecessary and extravagant to publish the findings of Grand Juries in all of the newspapers. We do not want to show any partiality and it is suggested that the newspaper be selected relative to the length of time it has been established in Atlanta. We recommend that these presentments be published in the oldest established paper of general circulation. We trust that succeeding Grand Juries will concur in this suggestion and that presentments of the Jury which follows us will be published in the second oldest established paper and so continue so each of the three Atlanta newspapers of general circulation will be selected once in every six months. If this is done, there will not be any partiality or discrimination.

In closing our presentments, we wish to express to the Solicitor and his able staff, our thanks and appreciation for their splendid cooperation.

Respectfully submitted,
F. R. MITCHELL,
Foreman.

GRAND JURY URGES STRICTEST ECONOMY

Abolition of Useless Jobs in Fulton Among Recommendations.

Halt to any further tax increase through a strict program of economy in state, county and city governments and cut in Fulton county administrative costs through abolition of useless county offices was recommended yesterday by the January-February grand jury.

Among major recommendations were:

Merger of Atlanta and Fulton county governments; a compulsory budget law for the county; county employes' pension bill to permit replacement of old and infirm workers; halt to creation of any additional county parks and reduction of expenditures on those now established; fingerprinting all persons who pawn articles, and elimination of one of the municipal court judgeships.

Another strong recommendation was that Fulton county commissioners "halt and take an accounting of themselves and also that they make "an accounting to the people whom they represent."

In urging passage of the budget law the presentments said in part:

"It will be unfortunate, indeed, if some restraint is not placed upon the commissioners to prevent further extravagances. The many demands that are being made upon them for paved roads, sewers, parks, and various other improvements cannot easily be denied under the present system. The budget system will be a protection to them as well as the people of the county."

Referring to economies in the county government, the presentments said:

"We recommend a reduction in the overhead and administrative expense with a view of a reduction in taxes. It is our opinion that if useless offices were abolished and unnecessary employes eliminated, and the county affairs administered in an economical manner, there would be no need for additional taxes, and should result in decreasing the present rate."

Jurors scored carrying concealed weapons, asserting "we believe that the maximum of the law should be given each offender."

They recommended the legislature enact legislation that will make it mandatory for a person to serve his sentence when the records indicate that he has been convicted on three felony charges.

FLOOD CONDITIONS CONTINUE IN STATE

Roads Washed Out, Crops Damaged by Rains, Swollen Streams.

Georgia flood conditions this week reached the "hardship" stage, with resulting damage to crops and other properties, and with traffic halted at several points, reports from several sections disclosed last night.

Tobacco beds were reported under water on low ground near Vidalia, and wet weather in southern Screven county was reported aiding blue-mold development, with the resultant loss of many plants. Heavy logs, used as bed borders in Toombs county, were washed away in many cases, and fields were boggy and roads washed out.

North of Vidalia, a 30-foot section of road was carried away by water, and in that and other sections school buses found it impracticable to make their accustomed rounds, with the result that school attendance was reduced sharply.

In Jeff Davis county, creeks and rivers were reported so swollen that school buses were not allowed to travel their rounds. Sixteen bridges in that county alone were reported washed out, and roads were said to be impassable. Schools were ordered closed until March 12.

The Oconee river, at Milledgeville, was reported swollen to a size it has not attained since 1931, going to 7 1-2 feet above flood stage Wednesday. Mrs. W. C. Lockhart, weather observer, said 5.38 inches of rain fell between Saturday and Thursday.

In southwest Georgia, at Bainbridge, the Flint river went to within two feet of flood stage, rising 12.7 feet to a 23-foot level from Saturday to Thursday. Indications are that the river will reach 26 feet by tomorrow. Its average is from 8 to 10 feet.

Traffic between Sylvania and Statesboro, by way of the Ogeechee river, has been closed, due to high water, and travel over dirt roads in that section is at a standstill.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 6

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

D'Arnot watched anxiously as the ape-man sniffed the air. "Water-hole near by," Tarzan announced. The Frenchman laughed. "We have been much in the forest together, yet always I marvel, mon ami. You are a jungle detective. You have the instincts of a bea—"

D'Arnot caught himself. Tarzan smiled with amusement. "Go on, say it—the instincts of a beast! True. By birth I am a man; by environment a beast. And if I were not able to meet the beasts on their own terms, Paul, I could not long survive in the jungle."

As if to confirm D'Arnot's tribute to his keen senses, Tarzan's nostrils dilated again, and he began to read the signs brought to him by the wind. "Smoke. That means men, camped, by the water-hole. White men. If they were natives I would get their scent."

As the two continued their journey, Tarzan's sensitive ears suddenly noted a subtle change in two voices of the jungle cacophony. "A lion and a leopard," he said grimly. "They've caught the scent of prey—perhaps human prey—between us and the water-hole."

TOO MUCH "ISM" TALK.

GRIFFIN, Ga., March 3.—The American people today hear perhaps too much about "isms" and not enough about the underlying, fundamental principles of their own democracy, Dr. Edward G. Mackay told members of the Griffin Rotary Club here. Dr. Mackay, a native of Ireland, is pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta.

A campaign to redeem properties of Wesleyan College, at Macon, lost through foreclosure sale, will be inaugurated at a meeting at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Wesley Memorial Methodist church. Prominent Methodist churchmen and educators from Georgia and other states will speak.

The meeting is the first of a series of rallies planned throughout the state in an effort to raise $600,000 to repurchase the buildings and other physical properties of the denominational college. Macon already has reported $150,000 in pledges, it was announced.

Among speakers to appear at Wesley church will be Bishop John M. Moore, Bishop U. V. W. Darlington and Bishop W. T. Watkins, Dr. Dice R. Anderson, president of Wesleyan College, and Dr. T. D. Ellis, chairman of the board of trustees.

Subsequent meetings will be held March 7 at Newnan, Griffin, Swainsboro, Statesboro and Augusta; March 8, Valdosta, Waycross, Athens and Marietta; March 9, Fort Valley, Cordele, Gainesville and Rome; and March 10, Camilla, Lumpkin, Monroe and Dalton.

ART EXHIBIT MOVED TO CARNEGIE LIBRARY

One of Atlanta's first "holdover" art exhibits was moved yesterday from the High Museum of Art to the Carnegie library where it will remain on view for the next three weeks.

The exhibit consists of eight paintings of negro life by Edmund Minor Archer, nationally prominent Virginia artist, who has been curator of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York for the last several years.

Merchants Instead of Customers Taken for Ride; 3 Indicted in Fraud

Promoters of Non-Existent Beauty Contest and Free Plane Flights Are Gone With About $600 Put Up by Fulton Businessmen.

Flop of a beauty contest and free plane flights which didn't materialize yesterday left about a score of Atlanta and Fulton county merchants holding the sack to the tune of about $600 and ended in indictment of three "fugitives" who promoted the enterprise.

Fulton county grand jury indicted Frank Rogers, J. J. Madden and Tom O'Brien on six counts of cheating and swindling and a search was begun for them.

Merchants told grand jury members yesterday that they contributed varying sums to the "promotional expense" of the advertising scheme.

tomers were grounded.

The six-count indictment alleges the following payments:

$25 by James L. Holmes, of the Brooks Tourist Camp; $23 by H. F. Nix, of the East Point Furniture Company; $24 by R. J. Gamble, of the Gamble Service Station; $15 by J. H. Cottongim, of Cottongim's Cash Store, and $7.50 by Collins Garrison, of the Garrison Service Station.

GABLE'S DIVORCE TO BE FILED TODAY

'Extreme Cruelty' Expected To Be Charge at Las Vegas Court.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 3.—(UP)—Clark Gable, he-man hero of the films, and Mrs. Gable reach the final parting of the ways tomorrow.

Frank McNamee Jr., attorney for Mrs. Gable, said he would file her long-awaited divorce petition then and that he expected Judge William E. Orr to hear the case Monday.

McNamee said the grounds probably would be "extreme cruelty," mildest charge upon which a divorce may be granted in Nevada.

The Gables have been separated several years, but only about two months ago did Mrs. Gable announce she would ask a divorce. Difficulties over a financial settlement were believed to have delayed the divorce plans previously. Mrs. Gable has completed the required six-week residence in Nevada.

TAX REDUCTION PROBE.

COVINGTON, La., March 3.—(AP)—Governor Richard W. Leche tonight ordered complete investigation of tax reductions granted in New Orleans during the past three years.

9 INDICTED IN PROBE OF FAKE PASSPORTS

Two Are Believed Held—or Executed—in Soviet Prison.

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP)—The bizarre story of persons masquerading under fictitious names across an international stage was climaxed today by a federal indictment naming nine persons in an alleged fake passport ring.

Among the defendants were the missing Adolph A. Rubens, or "Donald L. Robinson," self-styled New York writer, and his wife, Ruth Marie Rubens, who federal agents said entered Russia in 1937 on a fraudulent passport.

Although an American envoy reported later he talked to Mrs. Rubens in a Moscow prison, where she was held on suspicion of spying, federal investigators said they did not know whether the couple was still alive.

Others named were Aaron Scharfin, formerly an employe of the Egyptian consulate in New York; Ossip Garber, a Fifth Avenue photographer; Edward Blatt, New York attorney, and four identified only as John Blank, Ivan "Doe," Dimitri "Doe" and Alexis "Doe."

The indictment charged the group with conspiring to violate the federal passport act and alleged they carried on their activities in New York, Chicago, Merrill, Wis., and in Canada, Sweden, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Austria, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia and Russia.

Warmer and partly cloudy weather for today, and the possibility of rain tonight or tomorrow was forecast last night by the United States Weather Bureau.

This morning's low is expected to be 40 degrees, in sharp contrast to yesterday's minimum of 32 degrees. Heavy frosts were reported over the state as far south as Augusta yesterday morning. The day's high was 51.

While rain isn't definite, weather bureau officials said a rapidly falling barometer in the southwest indicated its probable appearance here either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Speech Course Creates Turmoil In Emory Halls

Emory University's new speech course is causing a lot of embarrassment for its students.

As a classroom project, Joe Hall, a junior, had prepared a defense for a current campus question. As he was rehearsing with appropriate gestures, trying desperately to remember all the textbook theories, a fraternity brother came in, smelled a good argument, and proceeded to take the opposite stand.

"He tore down all my best points," Hall complained. "I finally had to rewrite the whole script."

Ernie Harwell had much the same experience. He was told to give before the class a campaign speech in typical political fashion. So with forceful language and articulate facial expressions, he rehearsed his plea for election in a room of the S. A. E. house.

When he had finished, loud applause greeted him from the doorway. Thirty-one of his brothers were standing there yelling "Harwell's the man for the ash can."

Directed to do a pantomine by Professor Dowling Leatherwood, Jere Wells decided to interpret a wrestling match. He, too, made the mistake of rehearsing in too little privacy, for his roommate caught him struggling to release himself from his own grasp.

It took a lot of talking on Wells' part to persuade the roommate not to call an ambulance.

"Ours may not be the most talked about class," Lorin Myers says. "But it's certainly the most talked in."
